Fires Hit County and City

Lightning was blamed for two fires at Clintondale, but the origin of a blaze that gutted Lomontville's only store was not determined. A Kingston fireman was injured when a blaze of possible incendiary origin tore through a one-story frame garage on the property of Walter Elston, 225 North Manor Avenue.

Treated at Hospital
Robert Priest of Engine 2, was taken to Benedictine Hospital for abrasions of the forearm and wrist. As firemen in charge of Deputy Chief Harry Sills arrived the entire rear of the building, which has a cellar and attic, was in flames. The garage, a tractor, furniture and garden tools were destroyed.

A previous fire of incendiary origin on March 9, 1966, damaged the structure.

Lomontville's only store was destroyed by fire late Thursday night and a family was made temporarily homeless by the blaze. The fire company responded to an alarm shortly after 11:40 p. m., minutes after Mr. and Mrs. Charles Herzog, who occupy the second floor apartment above the store, discovered the fire.

Assistant Fire Chief Henry Cahill owns the store which is located on Hurley Mountain Road. He said the Herzogs heard "crackling noises" and went down stairs where they found flames sweeping through the grocery store.

Hope to Reopen
Cahill noted the entire interior of the store was gutted and smoke and water damage caused to the Herzog apartment. He said he hopes to reopen the store soon. The cause of the fire was not determined. Firemen were at the scene until after 2 a. m. Chief James Hasenflue was in charge of firefighters.

Clintondale fire units in command of Chief Larry Capozzi responded to two calls for separate fires caused by lightning Thursday afternoon. A large frame summer house owned by a New York City family named Morano at Tuckers Corners was heavily damaged by flames.

Chief Capozzi said when firemen arrived they found the house heavily involved in flames inside the building. Lightning evidently followed a power line into the building, hit the television setting it on fire and the flames spread rapidly through the rooms.

A neighbor discovered the fire as smoke seeped through the closed doors and windows and notified fire officials. The house, which has a large dining area, was unoccupied at the time of the blaze.

Soon after firemen reported back in service, they were dispatched to a three-story frame boarding house on Crescent Avenue where lightning shorted wires in a light fixture on the third floor near the roof. Chief Capozzi said firemen quickly checked the blaze preventing serious damage.

Ellenville firemen in charge of Chief George Garrison quelled fire in the kitchen of the Ellenville home, 21 Church Street, that village, Thursday afternoon. Smoke damage was reported throughout the house. Garrison said the blaze started near the stove.

USSR Premier Visits DeGaulle En Route; U.N. Meets Saturday

PARIS (AP)—Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin arrived today from Moscow for an important round of talks with President Charles de Gaulle on the Middle East crisis.

After talks with De Gaulle, Kosygin will fly on late today to plead the Arab cause against Israel at the United Nations.

The Soviet Premier was welcomed at Orly Airport by Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville.

The Kosygin-De Gaulle talks were set up hurriedly Thursday as Kosygin prepared to leave for the United Nations and a special General Assembly meeting on the Middle East question.

With Kosygin's 50-man Soviet delegation is Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, an experienced negotiator at U.N. meetings.

U. N. Secretary-General U Thant announced today the General Assembly will meet in emergency session Saturday to deal with the Middle East situation.

The session is scheduled to open at 9:30 a. m. EDT.

It is expected to turn into a high-level meeting with other government chiefs, possibly including President Johnson, appearing at late stages.

The main debate is scheduled to begin Monday. The United States will lead off, followed by Kosygin, who will launch the Soviet drive for U.N. censure of Israel and for a withdrawal of Israeli troops from occupied areas of Egypt, Syria and Jordan.

Saturday's meeting will be devoted to formalities.

The secretary-general called the emergency session after a majority of the 122 member nations gave their approval to a Soviet request.

A U.N. spokesman said Belgium handed in an affirmative reply at 9:30 a. m. and this made the 62 required.

Only the United States and Israel declined to concur.

Amid speculation that Kosygin's first visit to the United States would also produce his first meeting with Johnson and a summit discussion on Vietnam, White House press officer George Christian said Thursday that the President "would, of course, be glad to see" the Soviet premier if Kosygin wants to see Johnson.

Secretary-General U Thant, polling the 122 U.N. members on the Soviet request for the assembly session, Thursday night needed only one more favorable reply to make the majority of 62 that would oblige him to call it with 24 hours.

U.N. sources said that if the clinching reply was on his desk when his office opened at 9 a. m. EDT, he would convene the first meeting for 9 or 9:30 a. m. Saturday, trying not to make it too early in the morning for the delegates.

When an aide closed the office for the night at 11 p. m., 61 countries, including France, had concurred in the Soviet bid for the emergency session. Only one, the United States, disapproved, while Britain and Iceland said they would concur if the majority did.

Viets, Planes Repulse Reds

By GEORGE MCARTHUR
SAIGON (AP) — An isolated South Vietnamese outpost battled a two-hour attack before dawn today by 500 guerrillas who broke under the pounding of air strikes.

36 Guerrillas
On the bloodied field at dawn the South Vietnamese found 36 Communist dead and 30 weapons. In addition, the defenders took six prisoners from among the guerrillas who spearheaded into the position in the early assault.

The attack took place in coastal Phu Yen Province at a position in the foothills rolling up to the central highlands. The guerrillas were evidently after the adjoining village of Long Tuong, where a team of South Vietnamese pacification workers have recently begun to operate with the villagers.

The black-clad pacification workers stood with a force of headquarters troops from an army unit to defend the village. A South Vietnamese spokesman said flameships and air support quickly arrived over the harried post, and casualties were light among the defenders.

Only scattered ground action was reported today after some stiff fights Thursday in the northern part of the country. In those 95 Communist soldiers and 15 Americans were reported killed and 31 Americans wounded.

Heavy weather over North Vietnam limited American pilots Thursday to raids mainly against supply lines extending south from Hanoi to the 17th Parallel dividing Vietnam. But despite the weather, U.S. pilots flew 136 missions over the North Vietnam and Communist ground fire downed a F105 Thunderchief. It was the 584th U.S. combat plane lost over the north, and the pilot was missing.

The Army's Task Force Oregon announced it had pushed an armored convoy over 60 miles of Highway 1 and returned the main coastal road in that area to nominal government control after two years of domination by the guerrillas. The stretch is between Chu Lai and Duc Pho, in Quang Ngai and Quang Tin Provinces. The road was restored to government control after two weeks of sweeping the area.

Despite the announcement, most of Highway 1 from the demilitarized zone to Saigon is still subject to Viet Cong control or taxation or both.

The bulk of the military action continued to be in the sensitive five provinces making up the 1st Corps area below the demilitarized zone.

Series of Actions
U.S. Command reported that in the preceding 24 hours U.S. Marines and Task Force Oregon soldiers operating in the area had been in a series of actions ranging from pitched battles to jungle skirmishes.

It was in Operation Arizona that U.S. Marines fought a strong Communist force only 20 miles from the big Da Nang base and reported 35 Red soldiers and seven Marines killed and 10 Americans wounded.

Units of the 5th Marine Regiment fought for nearly five hours 25 miles south of Da Nang. The Marines said 15 Communists and eight Americans were killed and 19 Leathernecks were wounded.

LBJ-Kosygin Talks Could Include Viet

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin are expected to discuss the Vietnamese war and peace possibilities as well as the Middle East crisis if they talk during Kosygin's United Nations trip.

U. S. officials said it was inconceivable the two could get together without touching on several issues, particularly the Vietnamese conflict.

LBJ Available
The White House said Thursday the President "would, of course, be glad to see" the Soviet premier if Kosygin wants to see the President.

But diplomats and American officials consider at least one talk between the two to be a certainty — unless Kosygin's conduct at an expected U.N. General Assembly session called for by Moscow is so violent against Israel and the United States that the resulting atmosphere would make a top-level talk impossible.

American diplomats who know Kosygin, however, say he is not likely to go to such extremes. He is regarded as tough but practical—concerned with concrete results.

Former Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev attended a General Assembly session in 1960 and waged a bitter campaign against the United States, pouncing the desk with his shoe. There was no talk with President Dwight D. Eisenhower that time.

Dramatic Gesture
Kosygin's trip to the United Nations is regarded here as a dramatic gesture to convince the Arab states the Soviet Union is going all the way in its support for them and its opposition to Israeli conquests in last week's war.

U. S. officials expect angry attacks on the U. S. role in the Middle East as Kosygin and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko seek to consolidate Soviet influence in the Arab world and turn Arab sentiment into bitter anti-Americanism. But they expect Kosygin will try to keep the damage to direct U. S. Soviet relations limited.

The Soviet foreign office announced Thursday Kosygin's trip to New York a few hours before he was scheduled to leave Moscow with an itinerary that includes a Paris conference with French President Charles de Gaulle.

Later Thursday Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin returned here from conferences in Moscow. He was about a month or six weeks later than originally expected. The delay was believed caused by Soviet policy reviews and perhaps new decisions on domestic, military and foreign questions.

Other Questions
Among those questions which could come up in a Johnson-Kosygin meeting are proposals for a treaty to block the spread of nuclear weapons and Johnson's proposal to Kosygin earlier this year that the United States and Moscow freeze work on missile defense systems in order to avoid a costly new round in the nuclear arms race.

White House press officer George Christian left open the possibility Johnson might go to the expected special assembly session, though the United States contends the meeting is unnecessary.

Johnson reportedly does not plan to attend as head of his country's delegation, but if U.S. interests seemed to require him to go there and make a speech he undoubtedly would do so. This is the kind of possibility which Christian evidently wished not to foreclose.

Christian hinted Secretary of State Dean Rusk would attend. Rusk and Gromyko traditionally meet when Gromyko comes to the General Assembly.

Paltz Student Found Guilty

It took an Ulster County jury less than an hour of deliberation to agree on a guilty verdict in another narcotics case in County Court.

Steve Bragonier, 19, of Plan-dome, a student to State University College, New Paltz, was found guilty of sale and possession of a narcotic drug following trial by jury. The case was submitted to the jury at noon Thursday but deliberations did not begin until after lunch. The jurors then asked that certain testimony be read and it was not until about 3 p. m. that actual deliberation began.

Shortly before 4 o'clock the guilty verdict was returned to County Judge Raymond J. Mino. Imposition of sentence was postponed until July 26.

Bragonier was found guilty of the felony charge of sale of a narcotic and the misdemeanor charge of possession. He was represented by Howard C. St. John Assistant District Attorney Robert A. MacKinnon appeared for the prosecution.

Bragonier was one of 11 seized as a result of a mass raid after the grand jury had conducted a lengthy investigation and returned 11 "John Doe" indictments. The defendants were arrested last December.

The Bragonier case is the second one of the 11 narcotic indictments to be tried by jury. Both resulted in convictions. Anthony Fiordilono, convicted of selling a narcotic drug to a New York detective, is awaiting sentence.

In two other cases pleas of guilty have been entered.

KHS Work Program Boon to Student, Employer Alike

The following is the first in a series of four articles exploring the many facets of the work experience program in Kingston High School. Today, Freeman staff writer Jean F. Dolan reviews the accomplishments of the 24-year-old education plan which has been a boon to student and employer alike.

By JEAN F. DOLAN
First of 4 Articles

A multi-million dollar business — that is what the work experience program at Kingston High School has amounted to in its 24-year existence.

Through the cooperation of 180 firms in the Kingston area, students in the business department have worked a total of 3,841,904 hours, earning $3,867,025.21 since the program was started September, 1943.

The part-time employment also gave students work experience credit in the fields of retail distribution and office clerical work.

Tribute to Connick
As interesting as the statistics are, they do not tell the whole story nearly as well as the recent tribute paid Loryne Connick, director of the program since 1946.

The 1967 Maroon yearbook is dedicated to him indicating the respect and gratitude of the students.

Mr. Connick:
For the past years you have held a responsibility as a teacher and as head of the business department. We, your students and friends, wish to express our thanks for the devotion and dedication you have given us. As a token of our appreciation for your giving of yourself to our desires and needs, and for your understanding, we respectfully dedicate our Maroon to you.

Very sincerely,
THE CLASS OF 1967

Credit for the groundwork and early beginnings of the program goes to James Tobin, now assistant superintendent in charge of transportation. It was Tobin who conducted surveys of the area, speaking before business groups and enlisting the aid of merchants.

Early participants were local Newberry, Woolworth, A&P and J. C. Penney stores. At that time, only 20 students were involved and local residents seeing teenagers on their way to early afternoon jobs would call the school to report truants.

Pleased employers interested others in the use of students as a part of the work force. Over the years the work experience phase has grown to the point where it is necessary, as Connick says, "to hold the line."

Best in State
To the credit of local educators and employers, the program is considered the largest and best of its type in the state.

Not only has it benefited the student as a potential member of the area labor market, but employers have been able to add part-time help to aid in the work load and train for the future.

The current enrollment of students is 235 in the distributive education phase and 345 in the office skills program.

Employers range from larger industries such as IBM which has a co-op program, through chain stores, banks, professional offices and locally owned retail stores.

In discussing the program, Connick noted that in many cases the business education program represents final formal education for many students. They do not go on to colleges or business schools, but through the comprehensive program offered here they gain the poise and know-how to go on to posts of importance in the business world.

Successful Students
Former students are now top salesmen, merchandise buyers, office managers and business owners.

Before they go into the business realm on a part-time basis, students are thoroughly versed in the skills necessary for their chosen field. Available in the classroom are business machines and instruction in clerical, accounting and selling techniques. For the student who becomes eligible in his junior and senior year for part-time employment, arrangements are made for classroom instruction augmented by the on-the-job training.

Here, away from the abstract atmosphere of the classroom, the budding business student goes on to develop finesse. In the actual office or selling situation, he must learn poise, pride in personal appearance and how to get along with fellow workers and the public in general.

Pride appears to be the keynote for all involved in the program—educator, employer and student.

NEXT: Distributive Education Phase.

In Vietnam

Mud Another Foe for Yanks

BY HENRI HUET
AP Photographer

PHUOC VINH, South Vietnam (AP) — The wounded GI pressed his body into the thick mud behind a log, his bandages smeared with muck.

Another GI slid his mud-splattered M16 rifle over the log and began firing back at Viet Cong hidden in the nearby trees.

Some American infantrymen crawled through the mud on their bellies, sliding behind poncho-wrapped dead men for cover.

Fifteen men took cover in a huge mud hole left by bombs dropped from U.S. planes supporting the infantrymen. Others dragged the wounded through the mud on ponchos to the rear of the line.

Some Areas Worse

Mud churned up by American bombs during the monsoon rains is another enemy for U.S. 1st Division infantrymen fighting in the Viet Cong-dominated war zone D, 47 miles northeast of Saigon.

The men fall into foxholes and quickly sink knee deep into the mud. Jumping off assault helicopters, many stumbled into mud holes cratered by bombs. U.S. fighter-bombers saturated the landing zone to destroy any enemy mines planted there and to clear the immediate area of Communist troops.

The mud is worst in the landing zones and other open areas. Most of zone D is thick jungle, and it is only muddy under the canopy where bombs have penetrated the thick undergrowth.

Three companies of the 16th Infantry's 1st Battalion have put down in Landing Zone Rufe. Each day two companies fan out into the jungle to seek out the enemy.

A Company, working about 1,000 yards southwest of the landing zone, spotted four Viet Cong at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday. The enemy ran and left five packs behind. An air strike was called down on the fleeing Viet Cong.

Nearly two hours later, to the north of A Company, Viet Cong troops hidden by the thick jungle opened fire from all directions on B Company.

B Company pulled back and called for artillery fire on the Communist positions. The Americans moved forward again and once more ran into heavy fire. Six infantrymen were killed and 12 wounded.

They pulled back a second time, dragging their wounded and dead through the thick mud to a small opening cratered by American bombs from which helicopters could take the wounded out.

The Viet Cong kept firing and wounded three more Americans.

Opening Too Small

The helicopters arrived but couldn't land because the opening in the trees was too small. They hovered overhead and lowered a litter.

The Viet Cong opened up on the helicopters. One was hit and just made it back to the battalion command post 1,000 yards away.

A second helicopter came in and managed to lift out one wounded man under heavy fire. It, too, was hit and barely made it back to the command post.

Big Chinook helicopters had to carry both of the damaged helicopters back to Lai Khe.

By then it was 7:30 p.m. and darkness had fallen. It was impossible to take the wounded out by helicopter. The company had to walk through the jungle back to the battalion command post, carrying their dead and wounded.

As the men moved through the black night, artillery shells and bombs dropped behind them to protect their rear. Some shell fragments landed only a few feet away from the troops, but no more Americans were hurt.

Half an hour before midnight, the company reached the command post. Helicopters were there waiting to take the wounded out.

U.S. Command in Saigon said 60 Viet Cong were killed, but B Company saw no enemy bodies on the battlefield.

FRONT LINE CARRIER — This small, eight-wheeled troop-support vehicle, the MACV (Multi-purpose Airmobile Combat-support Vehicle), is viewed by LTV Aerospace Corp. engineers as an ideal front-line carrier vehicle for areas such as Vietnam. Developed by the Michigan facility of the company's Missiles and Space Division, the MACV is powered by a 20-horsepower air-cooled engine, can travel 20 miles an hour on land and three miles an hour in water. The two-passenger carrier, with a 1,000-pound payload capacity, is designed for carrying weapons and reconnaissance work. (AP Wirephoto)

Ground Teams, Planes Comb Area for Craft

Civil Air Patrol ground teams today combed mountain areas for miles north of Kingston and CAP planes swept over Greene and parts of northern Ulster County as search for a missing aircraft with two men aboard entered its fourth day.

Richard Johnson, 27, of Branford, Conn., and Roy Steelman, 24, of Guilford, Conn., pilot and co-pilot of the Piper Aztec craft owned by the New Haven Airway Charter Service, were aboard the plane when it disappeared Tuesday afternoon while headed for this city to pickup Gant Company personnel.

Thirty-five minutes after the aircraft left Albany Airport in poor flying weather, the pilot called the flight tower requesting permission to return there. Radar placed the plane about 30 to 35 miles out of Albany at that time.

Major Andy Veith of the CAP, who today commanded the search, said that if the plane was airborne for any length of time after the landing request was received a second message would have been heard from the pilot.

The ground teams of 10 men each patrolled the Catskill Mountains since 5 a. m., interviewing residents who reported they had heard a plane Tuesday afternoon. Low ceiling and haze grounded the search planes at the Dutchess Airport yesterday and rain squalls in the afternoon caused cancellation of the search until today.

Major Veith reported "poor visibility" but expressed hopes that crews aboard aircraft might find some openings in the clouds to scan areas where a plane was reported flying low before the Piper Aztec was reported missing.

'Four Hot Spots'
Veith said "four hot spots" were closely searched. He did not give those locations because of restrictions.

State Police, deputy sheriffs and other police agencies and civilians patrolled areas in search of traces of the ill-fated craft.

Forest rangers, familiar with mountain areas took part in the search. CAP craft on ground teams from the Massachusetts area covered the western section of that state and the planes from Albany and other points were actively engaged in the search.

Two School Meetings Held

The second and third of four informational meetings to explain the need for a school bond issue of $1,795,000 for additions to the Glasco and Mt. Marion Schools in the Saugerties Central School District were held this week.

The two meetings were conducted in Glasco School Wednesday night and in Mt. Marion School Thursday.

Fourth and final of the informational sessions is scheduled for Wednesday night, June 21, at the Main Street School, Saugerties, at 8 p. m.

Vote on the bond issue is scheduled for Thursday, June 29, in the auditorium of the Main Street School from 12 noon until 9 p. m.

Upwards of 74 persons were in attendance during the Glasco meeting.

Jack O. Pakanen, president of the Board of Education, welcomed the assembly, and presented background information to solve the problem of inadequate housing facilities in the elementary schools. Dr. Dexter O. Arnold, superintendent of schools, presented a series of slides showing facilities in the elementary schools, and transparencies of charts and figures which illustrated graphically the need for additional classroom space.

A question-answer period followed the formal presentation in Glasco with members of the Board of Education and administrative staff assisting Dr. Arnold in providing answers to a number of penetrating questions.

Clarence Bryden, principal of Glasco School, announced that a committee has been formed to telephone area residents the day of the vote and stated that transportation will be provided for anyone needing it. Anyone needing transportation may call Bryden's office.

The Board of Education is anxious to inform District residents of the facts, and urges attendance at the last meeting. "This is a most important decision and one which affects

Rosendale Contracts For Town Dump Site

Arrangements for the Town of Rosendale dumping area were sealed Thursday according to announcement made this morning by Supervisor Gerard DeFelice.

A contract was signed with Walter Williams for use of property adjacent to the village dumping area. The sum of one dollar was given Williams to seal the one-year contract.

Hours will be 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. weekdays and Sunday 8 a. m. to 12 noon. Permit fees will remain at $50 for town refuse packers and $100 for town septic tank cleaners, not the rumored $300 fee. Those wishing special permission for use of the dump on weekends may contact either Supervisor DeFelice or George Bockelmann, superintendent of highways, for the key.

First UCCC Office Now at Stone Ridge

Thursday was an important day in the life of Ulster County Community College because it marked the moving of the first UCCC personnel into the new Stone Ridge campus.

The Business Office moved into a wing of the Business Studies Building at the Stone Ridge campus and was in operation there today. Dean of Administration, Robert Brown, is in charge of this office.

"This move by the Business Office was noteworthy," said President George B. Erbstein, "since it is the first step in our summer moving program to the Stone Ridge campus prior to the opening of classes there in September."

Next week the college will move its Student Personnel Office to the all-purpose building at Stone Ridge.

In succeeding weeks other college facilities, including offices, classrooms and laboratories, will be moved to the new campus.

Plans are being made to dedicate the new Stone Ridge campus in the fall along with an open house for the general public.

Arrest Illinois Man on Drug Count in Dutchess

Charged with possession of marijuana with intent to sell after he became ill while visiting friends at Bard College on Thursday, Wiley Dixon Powell, 23, of 2214 West Morse Avenue, Peoria, Ill., was arrested by Rhinebeck State Police.

Sgt. William Anagnos said Powell complained of feeling ill and he was taken from the college to Northern Dutchess Hospital for treatment. Anagnos said the defendant was found in possession of marijuana and authorities were notified.

The arrest was made by BCI Investigator Frank Hallock, who arraigned Powell before Police Justice William Pollard. The cast was adjourned until June 27 at 10 a. m. for preliminary examination. Powell was committed to the Dutchess County jail in lieu of $2,500 bail.

Crime Rate

The United States has the highest crime rate of any country in modern society with more than 200,000 prisoners in various federal and state prisons and state reformatories, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

WHERE ARE OUR FRIENDS

David Lawrence in his "Today in World Affairs" in this edition of The Freeman declares it is beginning to be apparent that American-Foreign Aid appropriations will be examined far more carefully in the future than they have in the past. Many members of Congress are getting letters from constituents who want to know why the United States has extended aid to governments whose spokesmen now are making false charges against the United States.

Egypt's Nasser broke relations with us, having falsely accused the United States of aiding Israel and India sided with Nasser against us. The United States has been generous to the extreme in aiding these two countries in their time of need. And these are but two recent happenings to prove that foreign aid does not necessarily win lasting friendships.

According to the U.S. News & World Report, a minimum of 43 specific nations have a promise from the United States to help if they're threatened. That is a minimum for even high government officials in Washington aren't sure of the exact number of countries covered by our assurance of help.

These commitments, which come in many shapes and sizes—regional treaties and alliances, bilateral and unilateral defense agreements, also need careful scrutiny.

Although the United States is militarily and economically strong, there are limits to what we can do. Furthermore, we should not be called upon to play a solo role of "World's Big Brother." Other freedom-loving nations should assume their full share of the burden in behalf of world peace.

BEWARE OF SUMMER

Summer is a carefree time for children. It is also a dangerous one. The National Safety Council is alerting parents to the injuries their children can suffer in their own backyards, for nearly half of all injuries to school-age children occur in backyards during the summer vacation.

A survey shows that your child is most likely to be injured this summer if he is a boy—43 per cent fewer injuries to girls than boys were found in a study of 9,000 children; if the child is playing at home during the late afternoon or early evening while he is hungry or tired—75 per cent of injured children were hungry or tired or injured just before their naps; and it is most probable that he will be injured in a fall.

The two most common instruments of child injury and death are pools and power mowers. They don't need much water for drowning. They have drowned in bird baths. Most drownings occur in shallow wading pools. It takes only seconds for a child's lungs to fill with water. They must be constantly watched, not just "looked after" from a distance.

Poisoning, drowning, cuts, burns, bites—what can parents do to prevent them? Supervise their playing children. Nearly half the injuries occur when children are unsupervised. Despite precautions, injuries are inevitable. Prepare for them. Keep within reach telephone numbers of the family doctor, hospital emergency room, fire department rescue squad, ambulance and poison control center. Take a first aid course and keep first aid supplies on hand. Maybe school vacation will be fun this summer.

MILLION FOR THE DRAFT

Due to lowered mental standards, just over 1 million men passed their mental, physical and administrative tests for the draft last year.

The Army Surgeon General reported the statistics dealing with the results of the examinations of youths for military service last year. Of a total of 1,610,000 examined, 605,199 were rejected, leaving 1,004,801 qualified and available for the draft.

A total of 176,033 were rejected for failing to meet the lowered mental tests, of whom 108,259 were white youths and 67,774 Negroes. These tests were designed to measure general mental ability to absorb military training within a reasonable time and the potential of general usefulness to the service.

Despite the lowered mental standards, three in eight failed to meet preinduction tests and were rejected, mostly for medical and administrative causes. Fortunately for the needs of the armed forces, the mentally and physically qualified will more than supply the demand for military manpower as the limited war in Vietnam requires at this time.

The large number of failures, however, present a national problem. Physical and mental fitness are important to the well being of the nation. They need to be upgraded to build American youth for the problems ahead, as well as to eliminate the hazards in poor bodies and minds they present.

Forbidden by law to strike as public employees, the teachers of New York City have voted for mass registrations the first day of the next school year, Sept. 11. It's a "certain type of strike," union president Albert Shanker said, a tactic which gets around the law. The only dissent was from those who wanted an out and out strike, claiming that the lawyers of the Board of Education "would get us off the hook." Laws outlawing strikes are not effective for such reasons.

Turn for the Better in Middle East

Good things do not always happen, but maybe it's time to remember that good things are possible. Why not speculate on the aftermath of the Israeli victory in that direction?

Surely the Kremlin may try to recoup its Middle East position and a new crisis evolve. Soviet diplomacy is as dangerous as a camel's kiss. Kremlin diplomacy is like the man who was walking in the woods and stopped when he saw a snake. It turned out to be a stick. And the stick he picked up to kill it with, ah, the stick turned out to be a snake.

But Soviet invincibility? The Israeli puncture let some of the ether in that myth escape.

To our advantage, this as a lesson will impress all our enemies throughout the world.

One thing Arabs have in common is that they must disagree. The Arab, mounted on a magnificent Arabian stallion, is probably the greatest horseman in the world. But to form great Arab riders into polo teams has always failed. The Arab simply will not share the ball.

Surrounded, and out-gunned, little Israel's victory could not have displayed this Arab weakness more clearly if it has been written in neon lights. And that's important.

World War I turned in the Middle East for the Allied powers. Winston Churchill called the El Alamein victory "the hinge of fate."

"Before Alamein we never had a victory," he said. "After Alamein we never had a defeat."

Benito Mussolini shipped his favorite horse by plane to North Africa as preparation for his entry as conqueror in Alexandria. He never entered Alexandria; he lost North Africa, and barely managed to get his horse back alive. Suppose our cold war turns there?

This is the true crossroads of the world. Through there passes all the air and sea routes between Europe and India, East Africa, the oil-rich Arabian peninsula, Southeast Asia, the Far East, New Zealand and Australia. It is the land bridge between Asia and Africa.

Soviet strategy has been to advance along this land bridge on the south rim of the Mediterranean ("middle of the world") sea in a military-political outflanking of Europe. Gamal Abdel Nasser, a cunning contriver, racked by greed, green with envy, totally devoted to power and to himself, has been the Kremlin's Castro there. Egypt has been the Soviet's Mediterranean lodgment as the counterpart to its Caribbean lodgment secured in Cuba, inside our own home defense perimeter.

We are told that anti-Israel animosities will continue, and probably intensify. I suppose they will. But so will recriminations inside the Arab world. The Soviet can never rebuild a successful coalition around Nasser, his successor, or anyone else in this strategic region. And, instead of a Kremlin stooge serving the Soviet global design there, the West now has an anti-Soviet Israel.

The better outlook should also be bracketed with the better outlook south of our own hemisphere, where another good thing happened.

The great Red target from the Kremlin's Cuban base, expanded to the Dominican Republic, was Brazil, which borders on all but two South American countries. And the Red star was over Brazil. Former Brazilian President Joao Goulart's Red record was flagrant. In fact, Goulart had returned from the embrace of Mao Tse-tung in Peking to take over the Presidency—a man cut out of the same cloth as Nasser.

Dominican Communist party executive committee members N. I. Conde, a Castroite trained in Cuba, and I. I. Quello, who was secretly landed in Santo Domingo from Moscow shortly before the attack confirmed in the Moscow magazine, World Marxist Review, that only U. S. armed intervention defeated the Red take-over program. They confirm that this thrust was on the same pattern that delivered Cuba to Castro and, "in spirit and meaning," both moves were connected as part of a whole.

Oliv President Johnson's immediate and successful intervention in the Dominican Republic saved us from another Castro in the Caribbean and, by now, probably a Red Brazil.

I believe we've seen a fundamental turn for the better in the Middle East crossroads of the world, as we did off the shores of Brazil.

Experimental Education—Part II

Nova is acknowledged to be the most advanced experimental school in the nation. There is a tinge of irony in this, because Florida ranks 46th among the states in education. Some scholars major in football. Schools lose accreditation; some of the smaller colleges are diploma factories.

Analysis shows that, in the U. S., school work consists of 80 per cent talking by the teacher and 20 per cent questions by the students. Stuart Synnestevedt, founder of Nova, believes that children can learn from teachers, from books and, most important, from each other. Small glassed-in rooms show students clustered around a small table. The topic is: "Have I learned it or have I only memorized it?"

Stu walks through the dozens of buildings, pausing here and there to watch and smile. "Love, learning and laughter is the basis of all education," he says. New students sit patiently, waiting for the teacher to inflict knowledge on them. Nova will not comply. The student must reach for knowledge and drink thirstily.

One girl was absent 23 days in a row. No one reported it. If she wanted to lie to her parents, it was her privilege. When she came back, she burst into tears. "Why didn't you come after me?" she moaned. The absence was not noted on a report card, because Nova doesn't issue them around a small table. The topic is: "Have I learned it or have I only memorized it?"

Stu walks through the dozens of buildings, pausing here and there to watch and smile. "Love, learning and laughter is the basis of all education," he says. New students sit patiently, waiting for the teacher to inflict knowledge on them. Nova will not comply. The student must reach for knowledge and drink thirstily.

The boy who upset Nova the most had taffy hair and a face of iron freckles. He showed up calmly, put his feet up on a desk, and sat back reading comic books. This went on for a week. No one chastised him or sent him to a principal. The one oddity about him was that something large was in his left trouser pocket every day.

One day a teacher asked what it was. The boy was sure. "Listen," he said, "you can make me do time here until I'm 16. That's all. Then you have to let me go." The teacher asked again what was in his pocket. The boy carefully removed a steel wheel in a wire frame.

"Sort of a gyroscope," the teacher said with interest. "Sort of," the boy said. "Except I made it different." The gyroscope was sent to a science class. From there it went to the U. S. Navy. In a short time, Admiral Hyman Rickover was at Nova to hold a conference with the boy who wouldn't study. One day the admiral and the kid disappeared, and neither has been seen since.

Nova has a 4,000 seat auditorium, but does not use it for morning assembly. "A waste of time," Synnestevedt says. "When the children arrive for class, they sit down. The students who run our television station put on their own program with their own technicians and their own actors. It's called 'Hello, World.' They also play 'The Star-Spangled Banner' and, even though we are not permitted to pray, the children call for a moment of reverential silence."

Most class lectures are filmed on video tape or sound tracks. In one room, there are six booths. Four are occupied by children with headphones and classbooks. They have been ill. Now, in their spare time, they listen to the lectures they missed and make notes. In a short time, they are abreast of the class. Blind boys and girls have their own classes. They have sound machines, textbooks in Braille, and they play chess with sets marked so that a child can feel the difference between a white piece and a black one.

In another room, 30 students sit with headsets, watching a teacher write on a chalk board: "Good morning. Isn't it a fine day to be out walking?" As she writes, the words are repeated in five languages on the earphones. This is a language class, and it can teach six simultaneously. The student dials the tongue he is studying, and voices on tapes repeat the words in German, Russian, Italian, French, Spanish and Chinese.

Nova wants its students to realize that it is an 11-month school. Teachers earn 20% more than in other schools. Instead of a 180-day school year, Nova students hit 210. They start earlier in the day and work until 4 p. m.

Almost all students utter the same critique: "For the first three months, you hate the place. After that, you wouldn't trade Nova for anything." . . .

U.S. Foreign Aid Will Be Examined More Carefully

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — A "cease-fire" doesn't always bring peace, and this time more fighting could ensue.

The Israelis have unequivocally stated that they wish to negotiate directly with the Arab governments only and will not accept mediation from the outside. This is the traditional position of the victor, but it doesn't guarantee that the vanquished will remain quiescent. Efforts to gain allies and to bring the Soviet Union and other countries into the fray will be pursued by the Arab nations. A dictated "peace" doesn't remove the threat of more war. It merely marks the beginning of a build-up to get revenge.

Meanwhile, the United Nations is preoccupied with accusations and counteraccusations as well as palpable maneuvers on the part of the Communist governments to get some propaganda advantage out of the adoption of a resolution of condemnation by the General Assembly. Obviously a partially phrased declaration will not gain the vote of the United States.

Also, if the smaller nations which have hitherto responded to Communist influence come out in the open now and line themselves up with the Soviets, it can only hurt their prestige in the long run, particularly inside the United States. For it is beginning to be apparent that American foreign-aid appropriations will be examined far more carefully in the future than they have been in the past. Many members of Congress are getting letters from constituents who want to know why the United States has extended aid to governments whose spokesmen now are making false charges against the United States.

The vote in the General Assembly of the U.N. that now may be taken could mark a significant turn in the attitude of the American people toward many of the countries whose governments are directly or indirectly manipulated by Moscow.

The United States itself is trying to steer a tactful course, and will avoid becoming involved in any threats of military action to preserve peace in the Middle East.

As long as Israel demands direct negotiations for peace, the Arab governments are bound to refrain from making any agreement, because they will expect to get better terms through a United Nations intervention. It may well be that the Israeli government is at present only talking for effect when it says it will insist on a dictated peace through direct negotiations. As of now, however, the Arab governments are faced with a flat statement by the Israeli Foreign minister that under no circumstances will Israel accept mediation by a third party.

The London Times gives this warning:

"The dangerous lesson the Arabs are liable to draw from last week's war is that piling up armaments for a conventional war is no use. Victory went to the Israelis partly because they struck first. The Arabs will try to get into a position from which they can do the same in their turn. This will take time, and will turn their thoughts more than ever towards nuclear warheads. Both sides are likely to plan in terms of preemptive strikes.

Unless the Israelis think they can batter the Arabs into submission every five or ten years they will have to dilute their present resolution with magnanimity."

The Soviets have an opportunity to co-operate in the making of a real peace in the Middle East. If, however, they persist in their charges and accusations, this will merely exacerbate feelings and worsen rather than improve their relations with the United States.

There are so many obstacles and so many barriers toward the making of peace between Israel and the Arab countries that no good cause will be served by a continuance of Soviet partisanship. What is necessary is that both the United States and the Soviet governments lend their influence toward an impartial settlement to be devised by the diplomatic representatives of the major powers in the United Nations. This is the only hope for peace, though it may not be fully realized until more fighting breaks out. A cease-fire is, after all, only a preliminary step. The realistic question is whether both sides will make concessions and bring about a settlement that will be enduring.

Washington News

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—It was not one of Fidel Castro's good days when, late this spring, four Cubans of military status tried to land undetected on a Venezuelan beach.

They were escorted twice as many Venezuelans, Communist-trained subversives carrying nearly $10,000 in cash.

The mission aborted. One Cuban was drowned, another was killed, the other two—along with the Venezuelans—were captured. One of these later committed suicide, leaving one Cuban army officer in Venezuelan's hands. He has fully confessed the subversive intent of the mission.

Representatives of the Organization of American States, acting in accord with a formal Venezuelan protest against Cuba, have recently visited Venezuela to look into the episode first-hand.

Verbal condemnation of Cuba by the OAS seems likely, but this is hardly enough to satisfy the annoyed President Leoni of Venezuela. Officials there assume other Cuban-led landing missions have succeeded, and an estimated 150 key Red subversives are believed to be operating within the country.

No major new alarm is felt. Big guerrilla activity has nearly ceased. Nuisance bombings still go on in Caracas and elsewhere, but they can have no seriously disruptive effect upon the Leoni government. Yet Venezuelans appear weary of the harassment.

Their country is no longer getting the lion's share of Red attention in Latin America. Its progressive government and its economic gains have made it singularly invulnerable. That it still figures sharply in Communist strategy for Latin America is explained largely by one thing—its rich resources in oil and, to a lesser extent, iron ore.

The importance of Venezuela's oil to the free world has been drummed in by the Middle East war, with its disruption of normal oil flow to the West.

Venezuela is the largest single oil-exporting nation in the world, and the third largest producer behind the United States and Russia. The United States, which turns out 8.3 million barrels a day, gets nearly 1.4 million a day directly from Venezuela or indirectly, through refineries in the Dutch West Indies.

Any long-continued interruption of the Middle Eastern flow may put new demands upon the Venezuelan fields, particularly to supply Europe, the chief loser from the Arab cutoff.

Probably these demands would be met in considerable part. But if the Venezuelans are fretting over too much Communist attention, they complain some of American inattention and lack of consideration.

which might suggest that Venezuelan oil can be controlled by a spigot at the will of outsiders, according to their current needs.

The Leoni government might be a little happier if it were shipping the United States more crude oil than it does. But roughly half its exports to us are the cheaper residual fuel oils.

Already noted in print is the further complaint that the existing U.S. oil-import quota system discriminates against Venezuela and favors lesser suppliers to the United States—specifically Canada and Mexico. It is here that crude oil imports suffer heavily.

Obviously Venezuela is a firm U.S. friend. Its sense of national assurance and its cordiality might grow rapidly, however, if this country were to work out more considerate oil arrangements and if all the American lands would do more than just talk about slapping down Castro for his subversive harassments.

Egypt's 2,000 Jews

Life in U.A.R. During the War

Editor's Note: George Weller, Pulitzer Prize-winning reporter on the Chicago Daily News Foreign Service, was in Cairo when the United Arab Republic broke off relations with the United States. He now has reached Greece. The following is the first of several dispatches in which he will tell of life in the U.A.R. during the war with Israel.

By GEORGE WELLER
Chicago Daily News
Foreign Service

ALEXANDRIA HARBOR, U.A.R. (Delayed)—The fate of Egypt's 2,000 Jews has been rough according to fugitives from Gamal Abdel Nasser's prisons. Almost every head of a family (about 600) are under arrest in Cairo. Many have demonstrated loyalty to Egypt and contributed to Nasser's campaign.

U.A.R. police say the Jews are being held in one of Cairo's largest prisons without charges to protect them from violent mobs.

Victor Nessim, an Egyptian-born Jew with an Argentine passport described what he went through to the Chicago Daily News before boarding a ship taking him—without his mother, wife or four children—to Europe.

"Police came for me at noon on the day the war began. I am not a practicing religious Jew but in Egypt everybody must claim some religion even if he's an atheist. They told me that they wanted to protect me."

At the same time the police threw a cordon around the house of Cairo's Grand Rabbi and several minor rabbis.

"They picked up 40 foreign Jews like me," said Nessim, who is 56 and owns a small machine tool plant in Cairo. "When their police stations were full, we were collected in police vans and taken about 25 miles out to the main prison for narcotic addicts near the Nile dam. We disliked being handcuffed in order to be protected."

While foreign Jews were being taken outside Cairo, 400 native Egyptian Jews, vestige of once wealthy community which owned Cairo's movie palaces and department stores, were rounded up in the streets paralyzed by air raid alerts and taken to Abouzaba Prison. Two hundred more Jewish family heads from Alexandria, which has a single synagogue, were brought to Cairo.

What treatment these Egyptian Jews are receiving is not known but some were allowed to see their wives. Foreign Jews were lodged in the prison at the dam, which specializes in hashish pushers.

"I was with a man whose only support was his mother's 25 piasters (50 U.S. cents) earned taking in washing, hence he was forced to sell drugs," said Nessim. "I kept thinking of my 70 employees and my family. The police brought in a Swiss couple who weren't Jewish but were jailed anyway in cells intended for three persons. The food was not bad: potatoes, tomato and beans."

Finally the foreign Jews were cleared for expulsion. The word "mabayid," meaning expelled, was stamped on Nessim's passport together with a warning to all Egyptian consuls to deny him a visa for return.

Because he was classified as an American, he was driven to Alexandria in a police car but was kept handcuffed. Other Jews were put in open trucks with soldiers. En route they received beatings either from soldiers or from the populace. They were in a scared and ragged condition when finally the handcuffs were removed and they were placed aboard a German freighter bound for Crete.

"The first point of Israel's peace demands or those of the Security Council," said Nessim pathetically in his collarless shirt, "is that Nasser should be forced to allow his Jews to depart with their belongings. We Egyptian Jews love Egypt as everybody does his birthplace, but for a long time it will be an impossible place for Jews to live. I had already intended to leave but was waiting for a chance to liquidate my machine shop, which is worth about $150,000. I never wanted to leave as a beggar bringing my mother, wife and four children. I waited and now they have taken the responsibility of expelling me. They should compensate us."

Anti-Zionism is part of Nationalist Egypt's code but anti-Semitism has hitherto been rare. Nasser's first president, General Mohammed Naguib who has been under arrest for 12 years, once dared to say in a speech in Freedom Square that the revolution was "based on ideals of the Moslem church and the synagogue. But the public mood has hardened under the humiliating defeats of 1956 and 1967 and the lives of anti-Zionist Jews are genuinely imperiled."

One Delegate's Viewpoint

A CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION REPORT
by
S. James Matthews

Monday was the last day for the introduction of propositions by the individual delegates to the Constitutional Convention. It was also the occasion for me to introduce my only two suggestions towards a more effective state charter.

It is my firm belief that a rash of measures by a delegate is not only unwise, but certainly unnecessary. Most proposals introduced have covered subjects which were bound to be considered by the fourteen standing committees of the Convention regardless of whether a proposition was introduced.

Consequently, I refrained from introducing one of my measures until the last moment to ascertain whether any discussion would be forthcoming from the committees. When it was not, I took a stand to insure that some attention would be directed towards the situation I sought to correct.

Proposes Revisions

My first proposition calls for the appointment of a Boundary Revision Commission with power to recommend changes in county, city, town, village and special district lines. I dare say that no more radical departure from the status quo has been made by any delegate to the Convention.

To my way of thinking, local government has too long flourished in its own ineptness. The boundaries, which were artificially drawn sometime as far back as the days of the American Revolution are no longer, in these days of rapid transportation, able to be justified on the basis of need or convenience.

Instead of modern government responsive most directly to the people involved, we have for the most part, overlapping functions, horse and buggy procedures and a form of government which, while sentimentalized by the citizen, is for the most part, doing nothing more than the "housekeeping chores" for the rules and regulations sent down from Albany or Washington.

The reader may, from my remarks, assume that I am interested in big government. Nothing could be further from the truth. It is because I am a strong believer in local government that I introduced my measure.

Our municipalities need more than increased powers of home rule. They must be able to cast off the shackles of old boundary lines and enlarge them to include the logical area they serve and acquire the necessary tax base to enable the efficient use of skilled employees and modern machines.

Political 'Dynamite'

What is proposed is not designed to win me friends from among the ranks of local public officials. In a few words, it may be termed political "dynamite."

There are many officeholders who would be removed as unnecessary in what I view as the ultimate results of the proposals. For instance, it is not difficult to envision in both counties in my district Dutchess and Ulster, no more than six units of local government below the county level.

These officials are the backbone of political parties and rightly so. Moreover, they are hard working and scrupulously honest and therefore, have many admirers.

With vested interest, they have resisted, consolidated themselves and have been able to persuade their friends and acquaintances to similarly go along. We need to have the machinery to put into effect revision of government lines on an impartial basis.

If we are to meet the challenges of the 21st Century with a population twice that we now experience, daring changes must be sought. While entertaining no real hope that my proposition will find its way into the final draft of the Convention, I do believe that we must meet the problems on which it focuses. More on this in a later column.

The sewing machine is a status symbol for Palau Islanders, who display the machines in their front windows.

Establish Two Registration Polls in Ulster

Ulster Town Board has authorized Supervisor Thaddeus Musialkiewicz to set up two places of registration in the town to meet the convenience of residents of that town.

Under the new permanent personal registration all residents in the county area must now register personally in order to be eligible to vote in November.

Designated in the Town of Ulster as places for registration are the Ulster Library in District No. 5 and the Spring Lake Firehouse, on Lucas Avenue extension. Both places have been made available without charge for the town in order to provide residents the convenience of registration in the town.

The dates chosen for registration are July 15 and August 12 between the hours of 12 noon and 6 p.m. Poll employees on registration days will be paid by the County Board of Elections.

Local residents are reminded that central registration is now being conducted at the County Board of Elections office in the County Office Building, Fair and Main Street.

Rosendale Districts Face Loss of Fire Protection

Two Fire Protection Districts in the Town of Rosendale may be without fire protection unless some step is taken immediately to renew an agreement with Active Hose Company No. 1 of Rosendale village.

Mayor Joseph S. Reid said Thursday that an attempt to get the members of the town board to attend a joint meeting Wednesday with the Rosendale village board and officials of the hose company had failed to bring the matter to a head when Supervisor Gerard DeFelice and the town clerk failed to attend the session.

Involved in the situation is a renewal of a contract with Rosendale Village Active Company No. 1, to provide protection in the East and West Fire Districts of the township.

Mayor Reid said he had brought the matter to the attention of the town board "two meetings ago" but nothing has happened. He charged that the town "has not lived up to its commitment" and charged that the town owes $2,044 in insurance premiums to the village and until that matter is settled they cannot enter into a new contract.

The two areas concerned in the contract for fire protection are located outside the village of Rosendale and have been receiving fire protection under a contract with the village fire department.

The two areas involved in the dispute are the East District which runs along Creek Locks Road to the Thruway overpass and to Maple Hill along Route 32. The West district involves an area from Rosendale village to High Falls Park.

Mayor Reid said one of the questions involved was a map of the area which indicated the boundary of the protection districts. He said it was his desire to see that the people of the involved districts receive fire protection but firemen from the village could not legally respond to an alarm without a contract. Should a fireman be injured while responding to a call outside the village there was a grave question of responsibility of liability.

"There must be a public hearing before June 19 on the matter and we must give 10 days notice of such public hearing. How can we do that now?" Reid said. Unless there is a tentative contract by June 19, Reid said the Rosendale firemen cannot cover the two protection districts outside the village.

Mutual Aid could request the Rosendale firemen to respond to a call from outside the village, Mayor Reid said, but even in that event there would be a question of responsibility should a fireman be injured or equipment damaged.

Reid said the residents of the two protective districts were paying for fire protection and would not be getting protection unless some arrangement is made under a tentative contract before June 19.

All members of the Rosendale village board were present at the Wednesday night meeting of the village board as were officials of the fire company and Town Councilmen Karl Strobel and Harry Snyder along with Justice of the Peace Daniel McMonagle.

Reid charged that in the absence of Supervisor DeFelice and the town clerk "nothing concrete" was accomplished. Unless some tentative agreement "in writing" is obtained by June 19, Mayor Reid said the village firemen would be unable to give protection to the two districts outside the village.

Byrne Papers Reveal Happenings at Yalta

BY JACK BELL

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman once favored postwar dismemberment of Germany, the once-secret papers of former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes show. And Roosevelt declared himself so "bloodthirsty" over Nazi destruction in the Crimea he invited Soviet Premier Josef Stalin to "again propose a toast to the execution of 50,000 officers of the German army."

These and other intimate glimpses at turbulent World War II times are provided in formerly top secret papers deposited with the Clemson University Library by Byrnes, Truman's one-time secretary of state and Roosevelt's so-called assistant president.

Byrnes, living in retirement in Columbia, S.C., said in an interview he had no recollection of a previous Stalin toast to the execution of German officers but presumed it had been made at the December 1943 Tehran Conference.

This reporter's review of the Byrnes papers showed a report of the Yalta meeting said Stalin replied to Roosevelt's observation that "everyone was more bloodthirsty than they had been a year ago." He added that the destruction in the Crimea was nothing compared to that in the Ukraine, where the Germans had time for methodical wrecking.

The report said of Stalin: "He said the Germans were savages and seemed to hate with a sadistic hatred the creative work of human beings."

Another Byrnes paper covered a May 28, 1945, Moscow meeting of Harry Hopkins and Ambassador W. Averell Harriman with Stalin and Soviet Foreign Minister V.M. Molotov.

Hopkins, Truman's personal representative, brought up the issue of German dismemberment by observing he understood Stalin had said in a speech he was against cutting up the defeated nation.

Stalin said that at the February 1945 Yalta Conference two months before Roosevelt's death it was understood the decision was not for a positive plan to partition Germany but was a threat to be held over the Germans' heads.

The report continued, "Mr. Hopkins said that such was not his understanding of the Crimea decision and he knew that President Truman was inclined to ward dismemberment and in any event was for the detachment of the Saar, Ruhr and west bank of the Rhine under international control."

Stalin conceded the Soviets once advanced a dismemberment plan but dropped it after the British opposed it. He said the matter could be discussed at the forthcoming Potsdam Conference but that he did not regard the lopping off of parts of Germany as dismemberment.

Subsequently when the matter came up at a July 1945 conference of foreign ministers in Berlin, Byrnes reminded Molotov that Roosevelt had favored dismembering Germany but had changed his mind.

The Byrnes papers also disclose that Gen. Charles de Gaulle tried in 1945 to get the Allies to push France's border to the Rhine and that Stalin once urged the United States to take the leading role in rehabilitating postwar China.

At the Yalta meeting, Stalin was reported to have asked Roosevelt whether the U.S. President thought France should have a zone of occupation in Germany.

"The President said he thought it was not a bad idea," the report of the meeting said. "But he added that it was only out of kindness."

Asks Summer Programs to Prevent Riots

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Summer educational programs aimed at heading off summer riots are being espoused by the state education commissioner, Dr. James E. Allen Jr.

Allen, in a letter to city school superintendents throughout the state, noted that racial violence had erupted in several large cities in the country.

"We want to do everything possible to avoid such developments in New York State," Allen said.

He asked the school officials to "give the highest priority to the development in summer programs in education that would provide creative outlets for the interests and energies of disadvantaged children and youth in your community."

Allen said that resources for programs aimed at preventing unrest were available through the State Employment Service, the Labor Department and other state agencies.

Resnick, RFK Ask CR Probe In New Mexico

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Joseph Y. Resnick and U.S. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy have asked the Justice Department to investigate possible violations of civil rights in connection with incidents in Northern New Mexico.

The New York Democrats asked for a study in the case of a series of outbreaks involving a group seeking huge sections of property in the Southwest under the name of the Spanish land grants.

A department official said Thursday the results of the study will be sent to the Civil Rights Division for determination of possible federal prosecution.

The latest violence was a week ago when an armed band of about 30 persons invaded the county court house at Sierra Amarilla, N.M. Two law officers were wounded and the National Guard later rounded up numbers of Spanish-Americans.

Resnick said in a telegram that the National Guard took the people into custody and "individuals and homes were searched without warrants."

He said he had asked the department to determine if "the civil rights of innocent people were violated and to punish those responsible."

Killed in Fall

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A ship's officer was killed Thursday, the Coast Guard said, in a 60-foot fall from an open hatch into the empty bilge of an Italian freighter as it sailed in Lake Ontario.

He was Luiti Aurelio, the 28-year-old first engineer of the Capo-Mele, a 350-foot motor vessel bound from Montreal to Toronto and Detroit with general cargo.

The ship was seven miles off Rochester when a physician, taken by boat to the scene, pronounced Aurelio dead. He body was left aboard.

Aurelio was a native of Villa Franca Tirrena, Italy, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

Rail Merger Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hearings on the proposed $5.9 billion merger of the Norfolk and Western and Chesapeake & Ohio Railroads will resume Oct. 16, an Interstate Commerce Commission examiner says.

The hearings were recessed Thursday after 42 days of testimony.

On the other hand, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., made known he is working on a resolution he hopes the Senate will approve as a guide for U.S. policy. He said it would call for direct Arab-Israeli peace negotiations, backed by the major powers.

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., said: "We simply can't have another armed truce for the next 20 years as we did the last 20. No, I don't think there should be any withdrawal until Israel and the Arab states have negotiated together toward a lasting agreement to protect the viability of all the nations of that area."

Congress is not for the moment approaching any action or formal expression on the Middle East situation. But congressional sentiment is one factor for the President to consider.

Some who took no stand in the AP survey did so on the ground that Congress ought to stand clear for the time being.

Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., put it this way: "The situation is highly delicate and I think it should be left in the hands of the President. I don't want to rock the boat."

On the other hand, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., made known he is working on a resolution he hopes the Senate will approve as a guide for U.S. policy. He said it would call for direct Arab-Israeli peace negotiations, backed by the major powers.

Senate Rejects No-Strike Rule For Rail Strife

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

WASHINGTON (AP) — A defiant House rejected President Johnson's bid to guarantee settlement of a nationwide rail strike but a union pledge eased fears most U.S. trains will halt Monday.

Senate refusal to accept the surprise action — in which the House approved a 90-day no-strike extension but killed Johnson's proposal for a compulsory settlement if negotiations failed — could block indefinitely passage of legislation.

But the Railway Labor Executive Association, spokesman for 137,000 shopcraft union workers, pledged not to call a strike if the legislation goes to a House-Senate conference. The union organization's statement was read on the floor Thursday by Chairman Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., of the House Commerce Committee.

That appeared a temporary lifeline for congressmen who don't want to be blamed for a strike but don't want to be connected with a compulsory settlement, either.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., Senate sponsor of the Johnson measure, called the House action "a legislative mockery" and said he'd urge Senate conferees to reject it. The Senate earlier had passed the administration bill.

The House action, taken without members having to go on record as how they voted, was in part a reaction to two days of intensive administration pressure to approve the Senate-passed bill without any changes.

A neo-Nazi group, the National Renaissance Party, is entitled to use the Orange County Courthouse for meetings.

This was the ruling of the State Court of Appeals Thursday.

According to Associated Press reports the court overturned a lower-court ruling that backed the county's refusal to all the group to use courthouses in Goshen and Newburgh. The vote was 6 to 1.

The Orange County Board of Supervisors voted in 1965 to allow political parties to use the buildings but turned down the renaissance group on the ground that it was not a political party but "fascist" and "subversive."

A State Supreme Court justice declared the supervisors were wrong. An Appellate Division reversed the Supreme Court finding and permitted the county to deny the renaissance group use of the court houses.

In the majority opinion, Chief Judge Stanley H. Fuld wrote that the group did qualify as a political party. He added that the board's contention that such meetings would result in violence was not valid because, if there was a disturbance, "the fault would surely lie with those who objected to the views expounded and not with the speakers."

Tentative Accord Reached in NYC Pressman Pact

By VICTOR TIMONER

NEW YORK (AP) — Officials of the pressmen's union and the New York Times, Daily News and Long Island Press reached tentative agreement early today on a three-year contract.

The settlement, described by union president William J. Kennedy, as costing the publishers announced at 5:30 a.m. after a 12 hour bargaining session.

The agreement, which is subject to membership ratification, provides for wage hikes of $12.45 a week in the first year; $9.54 a week in the second year; and of $10.43 a week in the final year of the contract.

The increases would bring journeymen's base pay scales to $180.72 a week in the third year. Also won by the union were corrections in equity relating to the job status of junior pressmen, a half hour reduction of the Saturday night shift and a wage adjustment clause that provides automatic raises in the second and third years equal to any increase in the cost of living above the four per cent level.

The negotiations took place at the offices of the Publishers Association of the City of New York.

Operations Hurt By Loss of Huge AF Base in Libya

WASHINGTON (AP) — Loss of the huge Wheelus Air Force Base in Libya could hamper combat readiness of U.S. fighter and fighter-bomber units in Europe unless the Air Force can find some other range for practicing bombing, rocketry and gunnery.

Libyan Premier Husain Mazzi announced Thursday night in Tripoli that both the United States and Britain had been asked to withdraw from their military bases in his country to safeguard Libyan interests and preserve its neutrality.

The move was regarded as another Arab retaliation for alleged U.S. and British support of Israel in last week's Middle East war. Both countries have emphatically denied any involvement.

The only U.S. military installation in Libya is the Wheelus base, which American pilots in Europe use at least once a year to sharpen their bombing and shooting skills. Most of Europe is too densely populated for that kind of training.

The British have about 700 troops in garrisons at Tobruk and Benghazi and a Royal Air Force station with about 1,000 men at El Adem.

Wheelus, which the U.S. Air Force has used for more than 19 years, is considered ideal for bombing and rocketry practice because it is in a country of vast desert stretches where the population is small and scattered. Also, the weather allows year-round flying.

It is the last base occupied by the United States in North Africa. The Air Force closed three bomber bases in Morocco in 1963 as this country phased out its B47 medium jet bombers with the growth of American missile strength.

U.S. military officers said they can think of few other places open to the Americans in the European-Mediterranean-Mideast area that would be suitable for the kind of bombing practice carried on over Libya's sands.

Congress Survey Backs Assurances for Israel

By WILLIAM T. PEACOCK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress overwhelmingly believes Israel should get assurances of national security and access to the Gulf of Aqaba and Suez Canal before it withdraws from captured Arab territory.

An Associated Press survey reached 438 of Congress's 534 members and 364 took without important qualification that before the Mideast hostilities.

Among them were 42 senators and 322 House members.

Forty-one of those questioned gave qualified responses and 33 declined any expression. None said Israel should withdraw without any assurances.

At the time of the survey, the Soviet Union was pressing in the United Nations for a denunciation of Israel as an aggressor and for a U.N. call for Israeli withdrawal to borders existing before the Mideast hostilities.

Congress members were asked: "Should Israel withdraw from captured Arab territories before her security is guaranteed and she is assured of free access to the Gulf of Aqaba and the Suez Canal?"

Often responses were keyed to the premise that future stability in the area demands changes from the pre-war situation.

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., said: "We simply can't have another armed truce for the next 20 years as we did the last 20. No, I don't think there should be any withdrawal until Israel and the Arab states have negotiated together toward a lasting agreement to protect the viability of all the nations of that area."

Congress is not for the moment approaching any action or formal expression on the Middle East situation. But congressional sentiment is one factor for the President to consider.

Some who took no stand in the AP survey did so on the ground that Congress ought to stand clear for the time being.

Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., put it this way: "The situation is highly delicate and I think it should be left in the hands of the President. I don't want to rock the boat."

On the other hand, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., made known he is working on a resolution he hopes the Senate will approve as a guide for U.S. policy. He said it would call for direct Arab-Israeli peace negotiations, backed by the major powers.

Festival and Historical Display Noted June 17 at Ascension Church, West Park

On Saturday, June 17, the Episcopal Churchwomen of Ascension Church in West Park will sponsor a Strawberry Festival in connection with the 125th anniversary celebration of the parish. The hours will be from 2 to 7 p. m.

In addition to the strawberry festival there will be a display of 19th century antique items loaned for the occasion by members of the parish and friends.

Among the items to be displayed are the original communion silver of the parish, the agreement between the Vestry and the carpenter for building the Church in 1842, the original parish record books and other items of parish history. Other antiques to be displayed will include silver, dishes, furniture and costumes.

The admission price will admit everyone to both the display and strawberry festival.

Outdoor Art Show For Olive Library

The third annual outdoor Art Show of the Olive Free Library will be held on the grounds of the library in West Shokan on Saturday and Sunday, July 1 and 2, between the hours of 10 a. m. and 4 p. m.

This popular local exhibition, which has attracted about 200 viewers, is mounted by artists, both amateur and professional. Many artists who have exhibited previously will be exhibiting again, especially their newer paintings or works not shown in this area.

In addition, the display will show the work of new exhibitors in this section, among whom include Helen Makelin, Ruth Rice, Swan Brewster and Edward Neuser.

Sculpture and enamel will be on view as well as paintings any of which may be purchased. As in the past, there will be a booth for the sale of books.

The exhibition is open to the public without admission charge. Luncheon will be served.

OUNCE OF PREVENTION BEST CURE FOR A HANGOVER

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—How does alcohol affect people with low blood pressure?

A—Alcohol causes an initial slight rise in blood pressure but the effect lasts only a few minutes. It is followed by a slight fall in blood pressure accompanied by a feeling of relaxation.

Q—What over-the-counter medication can be used for a hangover? Another drink seems to be the only thing that helps and that gives only temporary relief.

Q—The old admonition: "Go to bed and sleep it off" is still the best treatment with the exception of the proverbial ounce of prevention.

Q—If an alcoholic is to have an abdominal operation, should he be treated for his alcoholism before the operation? Could alcoholism cause inflammation of the intestines?

A—There would be no need to postpone a needed operation because of chronic alcoholism. Acute intoxication would reduce the need for supplementary anesthesia. Alcohol is absorbed rapidly from the intestinal tract and would not cause inflammation because the concentration of alcohol in the intestines is never high. It is the concentration in the blood that is important.

Q—My husband drinks a lot of whiskey. When he is drinking he has trouble with sniffling. What causes this?

A—Although some persons with chronic sinusitis say that alcohol aggravates this condition, there is no evidence of any direct relationship between alcohol and any respiratory disease.

Q—I have heard that metronidazole is useful in treating alcoholics. Is it safe? Does it have any bad side effects?

A—Metronidazole (Flagyl) is a specific cure for trichomonas infections. It has recently been found to reduce the desire for alcohol in those who are taking it for this infection. Side effects may include nausea, itching, headache and dizziness. Anyone who takes this drug should have a periodic blood count. It may be harmful to an alcoholic whose alcoholism has caused cirrhosis of the liver.

Q—Can antihistamines cause cataracts?

A—Drugs of this class may cause blurred vision but not cataracts. The blurring clears up when the drug is discontinued.

FATHER'S DAY FATHER'S DAY FATHER'S DAY FATHER'S DAY FATHER'S DAY FATHER'S DAY

Father's Day Family Dinner in W. Hurley

By
DOROTHY A. NAREL

The founder of Father's Day was a mother. Her name was Mrs. John Bruce Dodd and she still lives in Spokane, Wash., the city where the very first Father's Day observance was held in 1910.

The idea for Father's Day came to Mrs. Dodd in 1909. Her own father, William Jackson Smart, was a Civil War veteran and a widower who single-handedly raised six children after the death of his wife in 1898, according to records kept by a leading card industry historian.

According to researchers, there were five sons and a daughter in the family. Mr. Smart brought them up "in the old fashioned, God-fearing way," Mrs. Dodd later said, on a farm in eastern Washington. "He was both mother and father to us for 21 years," she reflected after his death in 1919.

Mrs. Dodd wanted to honor him and fathers everywhere by setting aside one day of the year as a national tribute. She took her idea to her minister, and then to the Spokane Ministerial Association in 1909. The clergyman agreed to hold Father's Day services city-wide. The Spokane YMCA took up the crusade and created other Father's Day celebrations the same day.

Mrs. Dodd's original suggestion was that Father's Day be held on her own father's birthday June 5th, according to historians. But the ministers needed more time to prepare their sermon. So the third Sunday in June was chosen as the day. Thus the nation's first Father's Day was held in Spokane on June 19, 1910 and has been celebrated every year since then on the third Sunday in June.

READY FOR THE OVEN — The 24-pound turkey is just about ready for the oven. It can be baked ahead of time, Mrs. Fochi says, and be just as good.

William Jennings Bryan was one of the first national figures to endorse Mrs. Dodd's idea. He wrote to her: "Too much emphasis cannot be placed upon the relationship between parent and child." And he offered to make Father's Day a national occasion.

In 1916, President Woodrow Wilson, the president who first proclaimed a national Mother's Day, had a Father's Day button pressed in the White House. In 1924, President Calvin Coolidge recommended observance of Father's Day throughout the nation.

William Jackson Smart, the man who inspired Father's Day, died on December 5, 1919. He had lived to see his devotion to his children enshrined as a national tribute to Fathers everywhere.

Mrs. Dodd one said of her father: "This father of ours was stern and exciting. Only in time of childish hurt and sorrow did he relax into tenderness."

Spiritual and physical development of his children to become useful and upright citizens was to him his mother-father obligation. He provided well the simple necessities of life, and yet discouraged needless extravagance. Humility was to father a venture."

But locally I've pinpointed Father's Day to a house on Spillway Road in West Hurley. It is the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Fochi and each year, Danny is treated to a gastronomic feast. Interested in the menu his wife Ann uses, we got her to share some of her secrets with us.

Ann chose her type menu because most of it can be prepared ahead of time. The recipes are her own brain-children and her husband Danny, we've concluded, is just about the best fed man in the Hudson Valley.

Ann charts her dinner to serve 16 — two daughters son-in-law, grandson, sister and guests. She serves cocktail and a shrimp bowl with snappy cocktail sauce first.

For the Father's Day dinner, the table groans under the weight of a 24-lb. turkey with giblet gravy, Dad's favorite dressing, Candied Sweet Potatoes, Broccoli Supreme and Cranberry Mounds.

Danny is served two desserts that day—Cheese Cake Royal and Vienna Strawberry Kiss Torte followed by coffee and a favorite cordial.

For her Vienna Strawberry Kiss Torte, one of the most delicious desserts I have ever tasted, Ann simply makes a meringue shell filled with strawberries and whipped cream.

Mrs. Fochi's Snappy Cocktail Sauce for the shrimp bowl consists of ½ cup hot catsup, ½ cup chili sauce, ½ cup horseradish and the juice of one lemon. She mixes all ingredients and chills before serving.

Here are the rest of Ann's choice Father's Day dishes:

DAD'S FAVORITE DRESSING

1 lb. of bacon
3 lbs. onions
2 green peppers
1 bunch celery
½ tsp. pepper
½ tsp. salt

Render 1 lb. of finely cut bacon to light brown; add 3 lbs. of chopped onions and saute; add two finely chopped green peppers; add 1 large bunch pascal celery chopped. Cover and steam until celery is cooked.

While mixture is cooking, prepare the following ingredients in a large bowl: beat 8 eggs with 2½ cups milk, add 3 tablespoons poultry seasoning, 3 tablespoons chopped parsley, ½ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon salt. Mix and then add 2 large loaves of cubed bread. Mix by hand until egg mixture is absorbed. Add slightly cooled onion mixture and mix well. Stuff turkey.

CANDIED SWEET POTATOES

Boil 5 lbs. of sweet potatoes.

Peel and slice.

In a large greased casserole place half of the sliced sweet potatoes and dot with ¼ lb. of butter and ½ lb. of marshmallows. Cover with remaining sliced sweet potatoes and top with another ¼ lb. of butter and arrange another ½ lb. of marshmallows over the top.

Cover casserole with aluminum foil. Bake in 350 degree oven for 45 minutes. Remove foil and brown marshmallows lightly.

BROCCOLI SUPREME

Cook 6 packages frozen chopped broccoli according to package directions. Drain.

Add while drained broccoli is still hot ½ lb. butter and 3 eight oz. packages of cream cheese.

Mix until all is melted.

Place in greased casserole and sprinkle ½ cup of bread crumbs on top. Cover with aluminum foil and bake in 350 degree oven for ½ hour.

CRANBERRY MOUNDS

Cranberry mounds are used to garnish the turkey platter and used as individual salads. The mounds consist of one slice of pineapple, ½ inch slice of cranberry (Jellied) sauce, topped with a ½ peach (canned), and a cherry. The mounds are held together with a toothpick, plain or decorative.

CHEESE CAKE ROYAL

5 eight oz. packages of cream cheese
1½ cups of sugar
4 tablespoons flour

rind of 1 lemon
5 eggs
3 egg yolks
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat cream cheese in large bowl until fluffy. Gradually add sugar and flour mixture. Blend in lemon rind and vanilla. Add eggs and yolks one at a time beating well after each.

Line a spring form with your favorite crust. Turn mixture into crust lined pan, bake in hot oven 450 degrees for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 200 degrees and bake one hour. Turn off oven and leave oven for one hour. Remove from oven and cool in pan and then refrigerate overnight.

DAD'S FAVORITE DRESSING includes green peppers, eight eggs, milk, celery, onion and bacon. It is moist and tasty.

Democratic Women's Club Meeting Slated

The Ulster County Democratic Women's Club will hold an important meeting Monday, June 19, the eve of the primary election. The meeting will be in conjunction with the picnic supper, served by a committee of the club, at no charge to guests. The meeting will be at 6 p. m. at upper Hasbrouck Park. The officers of the club and the various committees have made an effort to learn the rules and regulations for the primary election. They request the public to attend in order to be an informed voter.

Girl Scout News

Registration Teas

The registration teas sponsored by the Kingston Neighborhood Service Team and conducted through the cooperation of the Scout groups at the Church of the Comforter and St. Joseph's School proved highly successful.

The main purpose of the teas was to help determine how much additional volunteer help would be needed to accommodate them. Those who were unable to attend the registrations may still register by sending a post card with their name, address, date of birth and school grade and school they are presently attending, parents name and the phone number to Mrs. H. L. Brown, 203 Hurley Avenue, Kingston. All girls who register will be notified in the early fall if there is a troop available for them.

Cadette Troop 132, hosted Junior Troop 62, Cadette Troop 60, of Bailey School, and Senior Troop 131, of St. James Methodist Church at a showing of slides and a lecture on Expo 67, by a lecturer for the New York Telephone Company, with slides provided by the Canadian Telephone System. Cadette Troop 132, is led by Mrs. Clarence Herdman, and sponsored by the Reformed Church of the Comforter.

Parents Feted

Junior Troop 39, St. Joseph's School, held its annual parents banquet and Court of Awards, on Wednesday. The Scouts planned and prepared the chicken dinner and entertained their parents with a program which included singing and dancing, poetry readings.

Mrs. Leo Natari and Mrs. William Winnie, co-leaders, presented many badges earned by their Scouts including Home Health and Safety; Community Safety; Active Citizen and others. Eight fifth grade juniors received their Sign of the Arrow award and six sixth graders received their Sign of the Star award.

There were nine girls who are going on into Cadette Scouting. This group combined and presented their co-leaders with charm bracelets as a token of their appreciation.

Senior Open House

Senior Girl Scout Troop 131, of St. James Church held an open house for Cadette Scouts interested in going to the Senior program June 13.

The girls held a flag ceremony and candlelight rededication ceremony, conducted by JoAnn Pagliaro.

Senior Scout Chris Richter gave a full report of all the senior activities and service projects during the past year. Senior Kathy Fagan acted as master of ceremonies.

Mrs. Francis Fagan presented awards to members of the troop, which included the eight I's, an award earned by the troop for a well balanced year's activities covering all phases of scouting, and their public relations bar some also received program aide and library aide bars.

The troop presented Senior Graduate Beverly Edwards with a farewell gift. Miss Edwards will be entering the nursing career at Albany Medical Center this fall, and she will continue in scouting as an adult volunteer in the near future.

The Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts is a member agency of the Ulster County Community Chest.

Katrine Fly-Up

Lake Katrine Fly-Up Ceremony was held at the Lake Katrine School Auditorium recently.

On the program was the opening flag ceremony, with all troops represented. Kathi Castle welcomed all the parents and friends to the event. Membership stars were awarded to Junior Troops 35 and 145 and Brownie Troops 12, 87 and 116.

Fly-up wings were presented to 20 girls from Troop 12 by Mrs. Carol Piper, leader. Mrs. H. P. Hoffman, Junior Troop 35, leader, conducted the investiture and rededication ceremonies. Mrs. Thelma Miller and Mrs. Ruth Kuhns, leaders of Junior Troop 145 pinned the new Junior Scouts.

Mrs. Hoffman introduced Mrs. Marie Bell, Cadette leader of the new troop being formed in Lake Katrine. Mrs. Bell welcomed eight Junior Scouts into Cadette Scouting and presented them with their Cookies.

Mrs. Ila Mongillo, neighborhood chairman of the Ulster-Hurley neighborhood, introduced and she explained a few changes that have taken place recently in the Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts.

Senior Scout, Kathy Hatt did the announcing for the program and Cadette Pat Sande was the piano accompanist for the program.

Crego-Craig Nuptials Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Shupa, Hudson, announce the wedding of her daughter, Mrs. Virginia Fowler Crego, RD 1, Kingston, to Gordon A. Craig Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon A. Craig Sr., Port Ewen.

The Rev. Cecil MacFarland, pastor of the Port Ewen Methodist Church, officiated at the double ring ceremony held Sunday, June 4 at 4 p. m. Organist was Gloria Clark.

Given in marriage by her step-father, Mrs. Craig wore a street-length dress of white organza in a modified cage style. The empire bodice and sleeves were banded in pink braided roses with matching pillbox hat. She carried a cascade of pink roses and lily of the valley.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Mary Tremper, Port Ewen, wore a dress with a pink bodice and a skirt of white net and miniature pink flowers. She carried an old fashioned bouquet of pink and white miniature pom-poms.

Robert Tremper, Port Ewen, was best man. Ushers were Roland Craig, son of the bridegroom and Benjamin Martin II, son-in-law of the bridegroom.

After the wedding, a reception for 75 guests was held in the Crystal Room of the Governor Clinton Hotel. When Mr. and Mrs. Craig return from their wedding trip, they will reside in the Town of Ulster.

Mrs. Craig is employed by N.Y.S. Board of Regents Research Unit in Kingston. Her husband is the manager of the Mayfair Theatre in the Town of Ulster.

Diane Krom Guest of Honor

On Saturday, June 3, a bridal shower was given for Diane Krom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Krom of 66 Merritt Avenue, Kingston, in the American Legion in Kingston. Miss Krom will wed Allen C. McCord of Kingston on July 8, 1967. The shower was given by the Misses Holly Delaney and Sharon Reynolds. Those in attendance: the Mmes. Dorothy Brodhead, Mary Brodhead, Nellie Goodsell, Edna Hall, Julia Bennett, Gail DeCicco, Virginia Bonavita, Anna Legg, Mildred Newell, George Krom, Chester A. McCord, Miriam Freer, JoAnn North, Melba Krom, Ruth North, Kay Neer, Ruth Kieffer, Jean Delaney, Evelyn Sherwood, Helen Peer, and Hilda Johnson. Also the Misses Elizabeth McCord, JoAnn Neer, Pam Pauker, and Lauren Winne.

Various programs presented at the general meetings included topics such as the Poison Health Control Center, the Multi-Media program, a panel discussion about the expectations of parents towards teachers, and a slide presentation concerning pre-adolescents striving for independence. The first meeting of the fall session will be announced.

Car No Place for Massages

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a secretary to a factory executive and I drive 17 miles to work and back every day. To help pay for gas, I accepted as passengers two men and two women. All are married, but not to each other. They were strangers until they started to ride with me.

Everything was fine the first few weeks, then one of the men began giving one of the women "back massages" and "neck rubs" to ease her tensed up nerves, he said. The idea clicked, but good. Now all the way to work and back these characters are giving each other back and neck massages, which turn out to be more mauling than anything else. Two sit in front and two sit in back. They switch around so each one gets to maul someone different. I don't know anything about their private lives, but whatever troubles they may have I don't want them treated in my car. And on a busy highway yet. I've told them to cut it out, but they ignore me. What is your advice? THE DRIVER

DEAR DRIVER: Ask the two ladies (?) to sit in the front with you, and the two gentlemen (?) to sit in the back. That should put a stop to the "group physiotherapy."

DEAR ABBY: What is your opinion of a middle-aged divorcee who has her parents announce her engagement in the newspaper to a middle-aged man?

The middle-aged man happens to be my ex-husband and the father of my two teen-age children. He didn't even have the decency to tell his children that he had marriage plans. The youngest cried bitterly when she saw it in the newspaper. Your opinion would be appreciated. EX-WIFE

DEAR EX-WIFE: Perhaps your ex-husband was as surprised to see the announcement in the newspaper as your children were. Don't judge him until you know his side of it.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think a wedding gown can jinx a marriage? I am being married soon, and my aunt has offered to let me wear her wedding gown which is beautiful, just like new, and fits like it was made for me. I really can't afford to buy a wedding gown, and this one would be perfect.

My whole family is up in arms. They say that wedding gown is "jinxed" because my aunt's marriage ended in divorce. My grandparents say if I wear that gown they won't attend my wedding. I would really like to wear it and I don't believe in jinxes, but I just don't know what to do. Can you help me? LILY OF THE VALLEY

DEAR LILY: I don't believe in "jinxes" either, but I wouldn't wear the gown for other reasons. The criticism of your relatives obviously affects you, or you would not have written. If you can't afford a new gown, borrow one from a "winner."

Confidential to "Mother of Daughters": Yes, I will tell mothers to teach their daughter how to cook, iron, and keep house properly. But I will also tell them that there is something even more important in a good marriage. Girls should be taught to cuddle a man, listen to him, entertain him, laugh with him, forgive him, and make his home a "happy" place to come home to.

Many divorced women say, "But I always kept a nice house and had his meals on time, and the rat left me."

How has the world been treating you? Unload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal, unpublished reply, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

The World Today

War in Mid-East Ended Fast; Peace Could Take Long Time

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — Israel's war on the Arabs was fast to the point. The peace settlement won't be. The dragged-out haggling is starting. So far the United States hasn't stuck its neck out. Moscow has. It's trying to catch back.

It made a mess of its dealings with the Arabs. Before the short-lived war began a week ago, Moscow promised Egypt support. Nice word, support. What did it mean? It turned out to mean nothing.

Soviets Guessed Wrong
The Soviets were playing it cute, probably hoping nothing would happen. And if it didn't they could pose as the Big Brother who had been ready to pitch in and help, the one big friend of the Arabs.

But then the Israelis swooshed through the Sinai Peninsula, wrecked the Egyptians and their air force, and knocked Jordan senseless, all in three days. The only help the Soviets gave Egypt was to ask the United Nations to call for a truce.

The Arab reaction to the United States, which had kept hands off, was bad and apparently for the old reason: If you aren't with me, you must be against me. But it was bad against the stand-by Soviets, too.

Now the Soviets are making such an obvious move to woo the Arabs again it looks unsophisticated. But diplomatically it's practical.

They're demanding in the United Nations that everything in the Mideast be restored to where it was before the fighting began, which means the Israelis should withdraw from all the land they captured and let the Arabs have it back.

If the Israelis yielded to the Soviet demand, which they give no sign of doing, then everything, including 679 Israelis killed and 2,363 wounded, would have been for nothing.

And the Arabs would be just as well off—at least in real estate—as they were before they fell on their face.

There's one stand-out good reason why the Israelis won't buy it—they'd have to return control of the Gulf of Aqaba to the Egyptians whose blockade of Israeli shipping in the gulf was the main cause of the war.

On the face of it Moscow's proposal makes no sense, except for whatever good impression the Kremlin thinks it will make on the Arabs. This move is transparent enough to look juvenile except for a couple of things.

At this moment both the United States and Soviet Union are trying to collect their senses after the sudden shock of the war and its sudden ending. And both are trying to play it cute until they know where they are going.

LEJ Plays It Coy
On May 23, before the war, President Johnson said this country was firmly committed to the support of political independence and territorial integrity of all the nations in the Middle East.

This might seem to mean the United States did not want to see any change in the borders or territories of the area. And this week, with the Israelis sitting on the captured land of the Arabs, Johnson said the United States remains wedded to his statement of May 23.

Did this mean he thought the Israelis should withdraw or keep what they had captured? All Johnson would say is that on May 23 he carried out "depends a great deal on the nations themselves, what their views are, and what their proposals are."

What does all this mean? That's what the Soviets and Arabs, no doubt, would like to know. Right now the United States itself probably doesn't know. By rubber-band language it buys time to see how the wind blows.

Soviets Lose in UN
But the U.N. Security Council turned down the Soviet suggestion that Israel, the winner in the war, should let the Arabs have their land back. Here again the United States didn't stick its neck out—at least very far out—but neither did most of the other members of the 15-nation Security Council.

Only six nations, including the Soviets, voted for the Soviet proposal: India, Bulgaria, Mali, Nigeria, and Ethiopia. The other nine, including the United States, Britain and France, abstained from voting, which killed the proposal.

Frustrated in this, Moscow demanded the General Assembly consider the problem. If debate starts there, it will be a do-or-die proposition.

When we wrote up today's hand a couple of months ago we explained that South wasn't happy with his six club contract and that six diamonds would have been much better. Then we showed that South took the first trick, played three rounds of spades in order to discard dummy's ten of hearts and then took the diamond finesse. East produced the king and returned a heart. South ruffed in dummy, drew trumps and spread his hand.

At this point we goofed. We said that if East had returned a diamond South would have been unable to make his contract. So many readers have pointed out to us that South could have made the hand by simply cross-ruffing. The only danger would be when South would have to ruff a diamond with the nine of clubs moved over to the East hand the cross-ruff would operate successfully.

A couple of readers went a step further in their analysis and asked, "How should South play the hand if East happened to let dummy hold the first diamond trick?"

The answer to this intriguing question is that we just don't know. The way the cards lie South could make seven by simply playing out the ace of diamonds and cross-ruffing, using the eight of clubs to ruff the first trick. Or he could abandon the eight of clubs and make six by ruffing high in his hand each time.

However, we rather fear that South would have fallen right into the trap. The game was match point duplicate. South might well have played out all his trumps and taken a second diamond finesse. East would have produced the king this second time and South would go down. In any event we are very glad this problem did not come up at the table.

CLIFFORD W. SNYDER

Snyder Seeking Support of GOP Voters at Polls

A new face on the Sauerter Republican scene as a candidate for Ulster County Legislature is Clifford W. Snyder. He is seeking the support of all Republicans in the coming Town of Sauerter Republican Primary to be held Tuesday, he said today.

Born and raised in Sauerter, Snyder is well qualified for the position he seeks, he feels. He holds a managerial position with IBM in Kingston and has had wide experience in public and personnel relations.

Snyder comes from a family which for generations has been staunchly Republican. His family has a long tradition of public service and his father was a deputy to J. Loughran during his term as Ulster County superintendent of highways.

A graduate of Sauerter High School where he played varsity baseball and later played with many area semi-pro teams, he is a manager and director of the Sauerter Babe Ruth League, and has had an opportunity to work with the youth of Sauerter. His experience in youth activities will aid him in evaluating the proposed County Recreation Commission, he feels.

A veteran of World War II, Snyder is a member of Lamoreaux Hackett Post 72 American Legion. He is a member of Ulster Lodge 193 F & AM, Glasco Fire Department, High Woods Sportsmen Club, Ulster County Republican Committee, treasurer of the Town of Sauerter Republican Committee, and the Republican Club.

Urges Registration
Since all voters must personally register in order to vote in November, Snyder is urging Sauerter voters to register early and avoid the crowded registration areas in October. In an attempt to ease the usual rush on regular reg-

Questions Are Answered On Need for Bond Issue

In addition to preparing information sheets and arranging a series of four meetings to assure that local voters are informed on the need for the upcoming bond issue to construct additions to Mt. Marion and Glasco Schools, the local Board of Education and the administrative staff of the school district have also released answers to several pertinent questions which have been raised.

In answer to a query why more polling places cannot be established, it is noted that election districts are possible but the advantages and disadvantages need to be weighed carefully. A study of the feasibility of such arrangements for Sauerter was made in 1962, but it was decided at that time not to change procedure and the Board of Education is now restudying the issue.

Many are concerned at what effect the bond issue will have on the tax rate. Granted that this is a question which concerns all taxpayers, it is impossible to give a definite answer at this time. The tax rate is affected by the valuation of property which changes every year, by the State average valuation which also changes annually, by the local share of debt service which depends upon Sauerter's State Aid ratio and its State Building Aid percentage which in turn are affected by the first two factors noted. The rate is also affected by the bond payment schedule which must still be approved and the interest rate on the bond issue which cannot be determined until bonds are sold.

Estimate Given
It is estimated at the present time that it will probably add around six dollars per $1,000 of assessed valuation the first year. If the proposed bond schedule is approved, the effect on the tax rate should decrease each year thereafter.

Registration days in the Town of Sauerter, Snyder, with other Republicans is urging the Ulster County Board of Elections to have two additional registration days prior to those scheduled in October.

Snyder is married to the former Florence Parr. They have two children, Jeanne and Clifford Jr. and reside in Barclay Heights.

Snyder urges all registered Republicans in the Town of Sauerter to vote on Primary Day, June 20, between the hours of 2 and 9 p. m. He endorses the four candidates selected by the Town Republican Committee, who are himself, Peter M. Williams, William D. Brinnier and C. Freeman Lasher.

Free Remedial Reading Class Set at Center

Saugerties Neighborhood Service Center is sponsoring a remedial reading program for elementary school children this summer. A meeting for volunteers was held last week at Sauerter Savings Bank Community Room. Mrs. Mills, for the Sauerter school system, described remedial reading methods and offered suggestions to volunteers.

Neighborhood Service Center is still seeking volunteers who will spend one hour or more with one child for one day or more a week. Those who are unable to work as volunteers can aid the program by donating books suitable for children in the five to 12 age group, as well as picture puzzles, simple children's games and children's magazines.

This project is especially important, since reading is such a basic tool for all other achievements that lack of reading skill can adversely affect a child's whole life, the center feels. In the case of children who come from disadvantaged backgrounds, the remedial program can serve as an enrichment of their daily lives, volunteers say. The Center hopes to have enough volunteers so there will be individual assistance for each child who needs it. Parents who feel their children can benefit from help with their reading and volunteers who wish to donate and/or material are requested to call Mrs. Yvonne Ostrander, at Sauerter Neighborhood Service Center or Mrs. William Carr, 5 Willow Road.

Tree Talk

Most toadstool-like fungi that pop up on lawns in the summer are harmless. Generally they indicate the presence of rotted vegetation in the soil. Spraying with a weak fungicide solution will control them in most instances.

But, be suspicious of light-brown mushrooms that appear at the base of trees. According to the Bartlett Tree Research Laboratories, these mushrooms may be fruiting bodies of the Armillaria shoestring root-rot fungus.

Shoestring root-rot attacks a wide variety of trees, including oak, sycamore, poplar, birch, alder, maple, pine, larch and hemlock. Tree weakened by drought, fill and other injury seem most susceptible.

The smooth honey-colored caps of the mushrooms are an inch or two wide. The mushrooms may appear on the sides of the trunk at the soil line, on exposed roots or pop directly from the ground. Beneath the soil at the trunk-line one may find cankered or dead areas on the buttress roots. Black shoestring-like strands may be found growing on the bark of the roots or running through the soil some distance away from the infected roots. The strands enter the roots and form thin white sheets or webs that ramify in all directions in the bark and sapwood. The roots decay. After a while, the decay may extend up into the trunk.

Inky caps — another type of mushroom-like fungus that has a gray cap which soon turns black — may appear beneath an elm after a drought. Usually they push up from a root that has been decayed. Inky caps are indicators of tree health and they do not attack live tree tissue.

Trees attacked by the Armillaria shoestring root-rot fungus can be saved, however. According to plant scientists at the Bartlett Research Laboratories and Experimental Grounds, the shoestring strands should be cut away. Paint the cuts with an antiseptic wound dressing. Remove with care any damaged root, and then feed the tree to restore vigor.

Inexperienced hands may cause greater damage to the infected tree. For proper care and advice, one should call a reputable tree expert company.

EXOTIC ZEBRA skins and decorative accessories make this room which the globe trotter will find smartly designed. Wood paneling adds just the right touch to the setting providing a natural background that is both traditional and appropriate for the person who has been everywhere.

Wood Paneling Can Decorate Brilliantly

If you're planning a new home or redecorating an old one, it's a good time to stop and think about what you really want in each room. Do you want a purely formal room for entertaining? Do you want a rugged setting for your children's room? Are your needs going to change?

These are just a few of the questions you have to ask yourself. However, here are a few tips to get you started properly. First, analyze your own and your family's personality. Consider your friends and the way you entertain or would like to.

Look carefully at the way you spend your leisure time at home, not only when you're with your entire family, but when you're alone too.

If you love to have dinner parties, you may want a formal dining room; but if your idea of fun is the backyard barbecue, what's the sense in having a whole room devoted to formal dining?

If you're an inveterate souvenir collector and world traveler, you may want to have your living room or den reflect this strong interest. Yet, you may also want to change it when your style of living changes. The best thing to do is to keep your setting flexible, especially your wall coverings. Weyerhaeuser Forestglo Paneling, for example, is an ideal wall covering because it goes with any period of furniture or decor and provides a beautiful backdrop for any room.

This makes it possible for a den to be transformed into a boy's bedroom without the fuss and bother of painting or papering again. And it lets you go from contemporary styling to formal period furniture in your living room without having to make concessions to your former taste. In fact, with wood paneling it's impossible to make a mistake because wood is a living, natural material that belongs wherever there is furniture.

Weyerhaeuser hardwood paneling is prefinished and resists scratches, dents, and smudges. All you need to do is to wipe it clean with a damp cloth from time to time. And it lasts and lasts.

Installation is simple too.

WHAT TO DO with your houseplants before you go on vacation depends on how long you plan to be away.

If you are going for a long vacation, you may sink your house plants in the soil in a sheltered part of the garden and hope for a normal amount of rain.

If your vacation will be only for a few days, water the plants well, set them on blocks of wood or stones in a basin of water, just high enough so that the pot bottom is touching water.

If you are going away for a week or two, water the plants, then drape them in a polyethylene bag such as your dry cleaner uses to protect clothing. Use wire coat hangers to support the plastic and keep it from touching the plant-in tent fashion.

A good and willing neighbor is better than any of the above plans.

Water potted plants thoroughly the day before you plan to transfer them to larger pots to accommodate expanded root systems. The watering will soften the root ball and make it easier to separate roots intact, with less shock.

The White House garden has received a strain of delphinium developed by Edward Steichen of Ridgefield, Conn., who traces the seed ancestry back to gardens of ancient Greece. The delphinium range in color from azure to indigo and mist. Steichen is an octogenarian photographer who has been breeding delphinium for 60 years.

Two colorful items from the catalogues: Althea Blue Bird, a shrub that will grow to about eight feet, with blooms five inches across; Cardinal Shrub, increasing in popularity, covered in May and June with small, trumpet-shaped flowers. (Both from Kelly Bros.)

Standard panels are available 4x7 feet, 4x8 feet, 4x9 feet and 4x10 feet and Weyerhaeuser Forestglo paneling is V-grooved at random intervals to give an individual plank effect.

In new construction, the panels can be applied directly to furring strips or backing. In remodeling, paneling can be applied over the existing wall surface easily and quickly.

Lumber dealers can provide complete detailed installation instructions showing you how to apply paneling over any type of wall surface. Regardless of how you plan to decorate, the best rule is not to be afraid. Trust your own taste because if it is your taste, it will reflect yourself and your personality. It will be natural.

For more paneling and decorating ideas, get the new 20-page, all-color "Decorating with Paneling," by sending 50c to Weyerhaeuser Company, Box B 4238, Tacoma, Wash. 98401.

The same nursery offers a flowering crab tree with red pink and white blooms.

In planting blueberries, add aluminum sulphate to the soil to give it the acidity enjoyed by blueberries. A good new variety of blueberry is Earliblue, developed by the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station.

In planting very fine seed, such as petunia, no soil covering is needed after sowing. Press the seeds gently to the soil with a stick or the palm of your hand. Slightly larger seeds need only a light covering. A small flour sifter, filled with sand or fine soil, may be used to cover the seeds.

There are some varieties of tomatoes of your garden. Plant them in pots if you want mobile color. They are attractive also in beds.

For blooms all summer plant phlox. There are small varieties excellent for borders or bedding, with brilliant flowers in several colors and forms.

Green Gift to Dad

For Father's Day try gifting Dad with some long-lasting foliage plants in sturdy clay pots to add a natural look to desk or bookshelves for either home den or business office. Most of the green plants are attractive and durable, and will look even better if clay saucers are included along with plant gifts.

Ready-Mixed Work Saver

You can mix your own concrete from a portland cement, sand, gravel and water, or you can buy the dry ingredients premixed and just add water.

Or you can buy ready-mixed concrete and eliminate all that work of mixing. You just pick up a phone and place an order.

But using ready-mixed concrete has its own problems—not great ones, to be sure, but matters important to a good job.

You have to know how much concrete is needed, when it will be delivered, how closely it can be delivered to the job area. You will need extra help and enough tools on hand when it arrives, for there is no waiting around with concrete.

Concrete is sold by the cubic yard and most ready-mix companies will deliver one cubic yard or more. If you need less, mix your own.

There are charts for finding the proper amount of concrete. Just remember that it is in cubic yards—figure the volume by multiplying length, width and thickness in feet or fractions of feet and divide by 27.

How thick should it be? For a patio or walk, three to four inches should be enough. Make a driveway at least six inches thick.

Ready-mix companies cannot run out with an order the day you call. Order in advance. If it is a small order—four cubic yards or less—give plenty of notice, since the company combines such orders to make a full load.

Clear a path so that the driver can get as close as possible to the work area. If he can't get to the form, you will have to haul the concrete in a wheelbarrow the additional distance. This is time-consuming and back-breaking work and can cost extra for holding up the truck.

Use 2 x 12 planks over your drive if you think the truck may be too heavy for it, or over your lawn (if it is necessary to go that way), but the lawn must be dry.

If there is a septic tank or oil tank buried in the area, avoid driving over the spot.

Concrete starts to harden as soon as it's poured. You could probably handle it yourself when you mix your own a bag at a time, but for large amounts, have at least one person to help.

Have all the necessary tools—shovels, rakes, wheelbarrow, strikeoff board, floats and trowel.

If you fill the form from the farthest end and keep pouring fresh concrete into the end of the stuff already poured, you will cut handling to the minimum.

Forms should be in and finished before the truck arrives. Use 2 x 3s set on edge and held with stakes. Use motor oil on the form so the concrete will not stick.

Once the ready-mixed is poured, the finishing is the same as if you had mixed your own. Except that you won't be nearly as tired.

Hardwood Floors Over Concrete Mean Resilience

If you're considering building a basementless home on a concrete slab, don't overlook the foot comfort to be gained by including floors of oak or other hardwood. And if you're buying a ready-built, carpeted slab house, be sure to ask whether there are hardwood floors beneath the carpeting.

That's the advice of Thomas B. Grissom Jr., president of the National Oak Flooring Manufacturers' Association. Grissom recalled the experience of an Australian aircraft company which discovered that most of its lost man-hours were caused by foot soreness, leg weariness, colds, and the like.

The employees were working on two factory areas, both of which had concrete floors. It was decided to have one floor covered with wood. Records were kept over a 12-month period. "Lost-time" recorded in the wood-floor area dropped to only 10 per cent of that in concrete-floored area. Workers stated that the wood floor reduced leg weariness and foot soreness.

The new economy method for installing strip hardwood flooring on concrete involves use of a double layer of 1 x 2-inch wood sleepers as a nail-lying base. A free leaflet describing the system is available from NOFMA headquarters, 814 Sterick Bldg., Memphis, Tenn. 38103.

Home Owning Do-It-Yourself Saved $2,500

Do-it-yourself does pay. A display company executive who owned a home for 10 years found out it pays off in hard cash.

Henry Brown and his wife decided their home needed a basement "uplifting" for frequent adult entertaining and children's recreation. In its former state—spacious and bare—it wasn't suitable for either.

For a pastime, Brown likes to work with tools in his home workshop. He decided to tackle a project with a purpose—his own recreation and considerable economy—by undertaking the ambitious basement modernization himself.

By the time the job was finished, Brown had spent $2,900 for materials and had "banked" a minimum of $2,500, the additional cost of having the job done by professionals. He wasn't guessing about this as he received and rejected two bids, $5,400 and $6,200.

By working evenings and weekends he was able to complete the "uplifting" of the 28-foot by 32-foot space in six months.

One reason his saving was so large and the time spent so reasonable was his decision to use predecorated hardtop panels with matching moldings. These he put up quickly using cartridge-type adhesive.

Primarily all the walls and several of the built-ins were covered with Royalcot Pecan paneling, one of 15 beautiful wood-grains made by Masonite Corporation. In some locations he used alternating panels of Marbletone, a textured hardboard with the rich appearance of travertine marble.

The Brown basement has several activity centers now—a gameroom for card playing, one for music and reading, another for lounging, and one for refreshments. The Browns and their four daughters—not to mention friends and neighbors—are making daily use of this low-cost recreation center.

Damp Problem

Humidity control is a problem in many households. Occupants either experience too much dampness or the air is too dry. What is worse, some rooms are too dry while others are too damp. This not only exaggerates the condition, it's unhealthy.

The amount of moisture that can be tolerated in a room depends on the construction of the house, the use of insulation plus outdoor temperatures and humidity.

The moisture content in the air must never be high enough to allow moisture to gather on the windows and yet it should never be so low as to cause drying out of skin surfaces and the mucous membranes of eyes, nasal and throat passages.

A good, centralized air-conditioning system is designed and properly ducted to introduce the proper amount of humidity into each room of your house as it is required.

Sunlight, Ventilation And Space Make for Pleasing Ranch Type

By JACK McLENEY

Today I can show you a plan for a time that I think will catch your fancy. Nothing ornate or elaborate, no expensive "gingerbread" or gadgets, features that keep adding to cost.

Associated Architects, who designed this home, call it "The Kimball." It is a ranch type with three bedrooms, a pleasingly large living room big enough to hold its own with dining furniture.

You'll find modern closets that blend into the decor painlessly, whose sliding doors add considerably to available wall space. You'll find, too, that windows strategically placed give the bedrooms plenty of natural sunlight and ventilation.

There are two linen closets, because it is almost natural to keep towels and washcloths separate from the bed linens.

In the living room we see that a decorative screen is used to form a vestibule, part of which contains the closet. This attractive unit eliminates an expensive wall. There is a fireplace of course, flanked by built-in bookshelves with wood boxes at the bottom. The living room, measuring 13 by 19 feet, adjoins the dining room, giving the effect of a single very large room. Big windows in both rooms enhance this feeling.

By attaching the garage to the house proper we find that there is a further saving in the construction of another wall. A garage door at the rear provides access to the kitchen entrance by means of a covered porch.

To obtain plans for "The Kimball" at moderate cost, please use the accompanying coupon. Make sure to check if you want blueprints with or without basement.

The living area of "The Kimball" is 1,200 square feet; garage and covered porch add another 270 square feet.

With your order for plans you will receive at no extra charge a set of specifications intended to help protect your investment.

In ordering plans for "The Kimball" you will be pleased to know that they conform with property and building requirements of the (FHA) Federal Housing Administration and that electrical wiring follows fire safety provisions of the National Electric Code.

Your blueprints will enable you to use any of the three most popular building materials today; wood siding, brick veneer or concrete block. All are equally handsome in this house.

Pot Design

Plants in red clay pots play important roles in terrace and patio decoration. Effects can be varied by arranging containers in interesting displays. Group clay-potted flowering and foliage plants in circles or other geometric patterns; mass small size pots in one large clay saucer, line the edge of the patio with pots of colorful flowers. Red clay pots will not only protect plant root health, but their warm terra cotta color and standard appearance blend well with outdoor furniture and do not detract from plant beauty.

Council Offers Remodeling Tips

An estimated $12 billion—or $200 per home—was spent last year on home improvement. Before you spend another $200 this summer, the National Better Heating-Cooling Council suggests you take heating requirements into consideration before embarking on remodeling plans.

The Council—the education/information center for the hydronic (hotwater) heating industry—reports that nine out of ten remodeling jobs will require heating work of some sort. It will be the wise homeowner who adjusts his plans accordingly.

If you have a hydronic (hot water) heating system, for instance, you may be able to adapt your present system to any new remodeling ideas. Additional heat will be needed when adding an extra room, converting an attic or finishing a basement. With a hydronic system you can extend the heating into these new areas without breaking down walls or ceilings.

In a hydronic system, a boiler heats water which is pumped through a network of tubing to baseboard heating units in each room of the house. The tubing can be easily snaked through the wall or floor to add-on rooms.

If you're remodeling the bathroom, you can enjoy the luxury of a heated bathtub by inserting a piece of tubing beneath the bathtub. The same hydronic system can be used to heat an attached greenhouse, a swimming pool, or an attached garage, or operate an automatic snow melting system.

A call to your local heating contractor should be the first step in planning any home improvement projects.

Most folks who ask a hand-out aren't contented with a shake.

An old gentleman in the Midwest consulted a doctor about his heart. Every time he took a deep breath, said the patient, he could hear his heart squeak.

The doctor went over him carefully, but found nothing much amiss. But he did prescribe a bit of lubricating oil for a small pulley on the old gent's suspenders.

Middle age is when you have two temptations—and pick the one that gets you home the earliest.

A man: A creature who buys football tickets three months in advance and waits until Christmas Eve to do his gift shopping.

Hash is round steak on its second time around.

When you borrow money, borrow from a pessimist; he never expects to get it back.

Why We Say--

"GONE TO POT"

C. N.

MELTED DOWN: When we say that something is "gone to pot," we mean that it is no longer useful. The expression alludes to the practice of sending useless scrap metal to the melting pot to be reused.

Quick Quiz

Q—Why were the letters "SOS" adopted as the international distress signal?

A—The accepted call for help from a ship in distress was chosen because it was convenient to send on the early wireless transmitters.

Q—Do all crabs run or move sideways?

A—Yes. All true crabs do—always tucked forward and never used for swimming.

Q—What price was paid by the National Gallery of Art for Leonardo da Vinci's painting, "Ginevra de' Benci"?

A—About $5.8 million—it is rated the most expensive painting in the history of art.

The first beer with no carbohydrates.

Three years ago, when we heard that a Swiss had discovered a way to brew beer—regular beer—with no carbohydrates we were skeptical to say the least.

But we went to Switzerland anyway just to see what he was up to.

In case you're a bit hazy about what a carbohydrate is, it's the thing that makes you feel stuffed after a beer or two.

Beer has the carbohydrate equivalent of 1 slice of bread in every bottle. (But not the nutritional value.)

The man's name was Dr. Hersch Gablinger.

In the past, brewers tried to reduce the carbohydrates by taking something away from the beer. (Less malt, less grain, more water, etc.)

Gablinger had discovered a way to get rid of all the carbohydrates, not by taking something away from the beer, but by adding something:

He said that when he added his "something" (he wasn't saying what it was) to the natural brewing process, a remarkable thing happened.

All the carbohydrates disappeared, but not the flavor.

We were still skeptical, but we tried the beer anyway.

It was an eye-opener.

What we tasted was actually real beer with not one bit of flavor removed.

Yet all the carbohydrates were gone.

We immediately bought the exclusive rights to his process and rushed back to America to test the beer at home.

This was crucial.

Even though we couldn't tell the difference between Gablinger's and any other great beer, we had to make sure you couldn't either.

Our first test was held in 1965.

We asked 1,388 beer-drinkers to taste Gablinger's beer (with no carbohydrates) and another good beer.

The results were just what we expected.

Not one of the 1,388 beer-drinkers who tasted Gablinger's beer volunteered he was drinking anything but naturally brewed beer.

Nobody missed the carbohydrates.

Just to be absolutely sure, we tested for another year, but the results were always the same.

Everybody thought it was just great beer.

We were so delighted, we decided to brew and bottle the beer immediately, put Mr. Gablinger's picture on the label and name the beer after him.

Which we did.
Gablinger's.

Young Man With a Dream

Foreign 'School Partner'

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Ray Donaldson is a slim, slightly built, soft spoken, young Kingstonian with a dream that would encompass continents. A former Peace Corps worker in Ethiopia, who also saw service with U. S. forces in Vietnam, he became a Kingston resident only last October when he accepted a job here.

While totally committed to that job, he is also possessed of a fervent willingness to help with an imaginative program that appeals to him for its unusual balance between idealism and practicality.

Donaldson, whose Southeast Asia war service followed on the heels of two years with the Peace Corps in Africa, has never allowed his battlefield experiences to blot out the lessons he learned about rural slums and the high illiteracy rate during his work with the Corps.

Heart of the Problem

The current dream of this dedicated young man revolves around getting to the heart of the basic educational problem in emerging nations and he has committed himself to helping the Peace Corps School Partnership program in this area.

To this end, he is offering an interesting program to local schools and service organizations such as P-TA, Kiwanis, Rotary, Lions and others. Donaldson will appear as a guest speaker at meetings anywhere for no fee to present an evening of slides on Peace Corps work in Ethiopia and life in Vietnam.

While he is convinced this will make for an educational meeting for those involved, his primary purpose in making the offer is a belief that he may be able to channel the natural idealism of the young and the sometimes-still-retained idealism of the older generation into a new and singularly effective kind of foreign aid.

For Hope and Progress

This would take the form of school construction in emerging countries where, in many instances, even a one-room school equivalent to the little red schoolhouse of America's past, would represent hope and progress. And, almost unbelievably, Donaldson says that in such rural reaches of the world and in urban slums abroad as well, a show-place school of one or two rooms can be built for about $1,000 in American money, including windows, roof and basic equipment of benches and tables.

Such a unique school-to-school program as sponsored by the Peace Corps and envisioned locally by Donaldson started just over three years ago near Schenectady when the Rosendale Elementary School P-TA in a nearby village of Casabianca, Colombia, which had 80 school-age children and no school, found itself hanging out classroom signs.

What Upstate Rosendale's P-TA did, Donaldson would like to see Ulster County's Rosendale do... or its Saugerties, Woodstock, Ellenville, Kingston, Phoenixia, Esopus or any other community.

Stimulate Interest

He is hopeful that many schools and service organizations in this area will become interested in stimulating the interest of their students to develop this type of relationship with a community abroad. All it would take would be donations of money to help build schools overseas and, as a volunteer for the Peace Corps in this program, he stands ready, willing and able to help match up the two communities here and there.

He points out that interests in such a project could run high. For instance, participating groups here could build models of the schools they are helping others to help themselves build or establish "pen pal" contact through letters with boys, girls and adults in the overseas community involved. Money-raising projects to avoid the feeling of "out-right charity" could run the gamut from cookie sales to movie programs, fairs and exhibits.

Donaldson is convinced that the school-to-school program he envisions will lead to better international understanding, through a free flow of letters and information. He also hastens to point out that this is not a "giveaway" program—but one which calls for ingenuity and self-help. The "giveaway" label has been averted, he says, by the adoption of rigid fiscal standards and money from here will not be transferred until local people overseas have obtained title to land for building, cleared it and put in the foundations. Later, the local government will provide teachers.

Sense of Pride

In Peru, for example, where such a school was built, parents of 64 potential pupils donated many hours of labor, both day and night. If this proved anything to Donaldson and others who work for this cause, it proved that, properly handled, these gifts can build pride instead of robbing people of that trait and proved, in addition, that the program cuts through the impersonality of government aid and permits individual participation.

Donald wants only the chance to spread the School Partnership story throughout Ulster County. He is willing to bring his slides program and his school-to-school plea into any village or township. Any group which feels it would like to toss its pebble into the foreign-aid millpond and start a wave action between its members and people abroad, can begin by inviting Ray Donaldson to speak at one of its meetings. He can be contacted at his home address: Route 32, RFD 4, Box 466A, Kingston.

Today in History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, June 16, the 167th day of 1967. There are 198 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1963, the world's first woman space traveler, Valentina Tereshkova, was launched into orbit from a base in Russia.

On this date: In 1858, Abraham Lincoln said in a famous speech in Springfield, Ill.: "A house divided against itself cannot stand."

In 1876, the republican national convention in Cincinnati nominated Rutherford B. Hayes for president.

In 1876, the Republican convention in St. Louis renominated President Woodrow Wilson for a second term.

In 1940, Marshal Henri Petain took over leadership of the French government to seek an armistice with Germany.

In 1941, the United States ordered Germany to close its 24 consulates in the United States.

In 1960, President Dwight D. Eisenhower cancelled a visit to Japan after anti-American rioting.

Ten years ago — The head of the British Labor Party, Hugh Gaitskell, urged acceptance of the Soviet proposal that all nuclear weapons tests be suspended for two or three years.

Five years ago — British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan completed a drastic shake-up of his cabinet.

Long Not Sure: Dodd Report Could Close or Reopen Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas J. Dodd acknowledges thanking Lyndon B. Johnson for swelling "my campaign drive" with money the Senate ethics committee says Dodd put to his personal use.

But the white-haired Connecticut Democrat maintained once again Thursday—in the third day of sometimes heated debate on a committee resolution to censure him for financial misconduct—that "testimonial affairs where I live are not considered campaign affairs."

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La.—Dodd's self-appointed defender—planned to make today what he told the Senate would be the closing argument in defense of his colleague.

But Long later told a reporter he wasn't sure if his statement would "close the debate or reopen it." He hinted once again he might present evidence the ethics panel "deliberately kept out of the record" because it regarded it as irrelevant.

Long said the evidence related to the four former Dodd employees who rifled the senator's files of 4,000 documents and turned them over to columnists Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson. Their columns touched off the 14-month ethics committee probe of Dodd that resulted in the censure resolution.

In Thursday's debate, Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., asked Dodd whether he wrote an Aug. 5, 1963, letter to Johnson, then vice president, thanking him for an offer "to come to Connecticut to assist me in my forthcoming campaign."

"Sure I wrote the letter," Dodd said.

The Dodd letter to Johnson continued: "I wish I could convey to you how enthusiastic everyone is about your visit and how much it will assist me in getting my campaign drive under way."

The ethics committee reported proceeds of "Dodd Day" events attended by Johnson amounted to at least $46,745 — part of $116,083 in political funds the committee asserts Dodd used for his personal benefit.

The ethics committee had a copy of the letter but never placed it in evidence because of its source. It treated such documents taken from Dodd's files without authorization as tainted.

After Dodd acknowledged writing the letter, Percy said, "It has been confirmed then."

Dodd did not comment on the quotations read by Percy from the letter.

But the two-term Connecticut senator rose to his feet shouting when Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., of the ethics panel said he believed those who bought tickets to Dodd's testimonials wanted the money used for "the strengthening of the office that he's holding—and certainly that doesn't include repairs to a house or payments to a son, however fine the son."

"Not one penny of this money has enriched me," Dodd said loudly. "The senator says he thinks he knows what the people had in mind — well, I think I know, too."

Dodd previously has confirmed that $9,479.40 of the money was spent on repairs to his home in North Stonington, Conn., and that he transferred $4,900 to his son, Jeremy.

Dodd's wife, Grace, watched the exchange from the gallery's front row, her seat during the three days of debate.

Earlier Stennis said the basis of the committee's charge was that money from the testimonials "was taken in under an express or implied representation to the people that these were political funds and thereafter wrongfully, in our view, converted over to personal use."

He said the committee knew that Johnson, who spoke at testimonials for Dodd in both 1961 and 1963, was "acting in absolute good faith and without knowledge of anything of this kind."

Stennis said this also was true of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, featured speaker at a 1965 testimonial dinner for Dodd. The gross receipts from this affair were listed by the committee as $79,223.

Stennis said he didn't see how any impartial person could find his way through "this morass of money" and "come out with the conclusion that a grievous wrong has not been done to the Senate."

Dodd, steadfastly maintained that the people who bought tickets to the testimonials had not been misled into thinking they were contributing to his campaign. He said he is $50,000 or more out of pocket despite the testimonials because of campaign expenses and the extra costs of office.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said the question the Senate must resolve was "what was in the mind of the contributors" to the testimonials—whether they intended the money for political purposes or for Dodd to use as he saw fit.

But Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., said the proposed censure resolution states Dodd engaged in a course of conduct to exercise the power and influence of his office "to obtain, and use for his personal benefit, funds from the public."

"The key is the use of the office for the solicitation of funds," Gore said.

Cornell Dean

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP)—Robert D. Miller, professor of soil physics at the State Agriculture College at Cornell University, has been named dean of the university faculty, Cornell announced today.

Miller, who joined the faculty in 1952, succeeds Royce P. Murphy, whose three-year term ends July 1. Murphy also formerly was on the agriculture staff.

The faculty dean coordinates faculty activities, the university said.

Advice Given Campers By First Aid Official

This is the second feature in a series of three on camping safety, prepared by Daniel H. Morehouse, First Aid Chairman of the Ulster County Red Cross Chapter.

"There is a whole lot more to selecting a camp site for the vacationing family than the view from a hilltop, or the inviting shade of a grove beside a lake."

So says Daniel H. Morehouse, chairman of First Aid of the Ulster County Chapter of the American Red Cross, who previously offered expectant campers some simple steps to improve their safety on the road.

Here are some important points to be weighed by the boss camper in selecting a site. To these, Morehouse has added some thoughts about camping procedures that can help make the stay more enjoyable as well as safer.

Select a campsite away from steep embankments and cliffs that could prove a temptation and a hazard to small children. Choose a place that offers some protection from high winds in the event of a severe storm.

Don't pitch your tent near old trees that may blow down during a storm. Examine the general area for deep holes and dangerous waters.

Know Poison Plants
Check the area for poisonous plants. Show your children how to identify poison ivy, poison oak, and sumac, and if possible, keep the children away from them.

Is there an ample supply of safe drinking water close by? Tap water in state and national parks is safe, if so marked. Lakes and streams in many areas are polluted.

Caution children against eating unidentified berries and mushrooms or toadstools that look edible but may be poisonous.

Be sure to wear clothing suited to the environment. This is true for both land and boats. Wear trousers or sturdy leg covering for hiking in brush.

Adjust slowly to the sun and avoid over-exposure. Carry a good insect repellent.

If there is wildlife in the area find out from a native or a park employee—someone who really knows—whether there is danger from animals or venomous snakes.

Keep garbage in a tight lidded container as a deterrent.

DO YOU REMEMBER

By Sophie Miller

I wonder what Thomas Cornell, or his son-in-law Samuel Coykendall whose family lived in mansions on West Chestnut Street, would have thought about urban renewal. The Coykendalls ran a million dollar towing business from the now gone landmark, Cornell Building, Cornell Park was also named from this family, and Cornell Hose Co. on Abel Street. There is a Thomas Street near Cornell Street, which no doubt also pertained to Thomas Cornell.

They had much to do with building the sturdy structures of Rondout, which suddenly the taxpayers of Kingston are talking about, and find a high heap of debris or leveled. The Cornells or Coykendalls needed no government agencies to tell them what to do, or how to spend their money, and through them people had jobs and homes and a magnificent Kingston Point Park, a nickel trolley car ride of several miles. They had talent, genius and logic, promised nothing, yet gave to those who wished to work for them and earn a fair salary of those days.

There was no compulsion in any fashion. The Kingston Point Park was free to enter, cost the taxpayer not one cent, and no doubt taxes were paid on it, and brought many dollars to Kingston and Ulster County, and of course to their nickel trolley car.

I understand those living now in the area where the 135 units are going up, are eating dust, and the whistle of the train as it goes around the project area really sounds off, even on Sunday they tell me. It would be interesting to find out how often this train whistle sounds right there, night and day.

With the coming of hot dry weather, the dust of urban renewal as the debris is being removed or even down, although a hose is put on it, floats freely in the air. The mortar or what holds the bricks or plaster walls can be tasted in the air. Perhaps we are going back to the old Kingston, when the streets had to be oiled to lay the dust. That was back in 1906 and finally they decided to lay brick in the road around 1910. It was said that Broadway was so dusty that following a heavy rain the streets would be a sea mud. Passengers alighting from the old trolley cars had to watch their step, or they would sink deep into a mud hole.

With the taking down of brick buildings and the nice old brick being cleaned to be sold as used brick perhaps it would be interesting to recall, that an Edward Foley was the expert who laid the brick on the Kingston streets. He required the services of 10 men to carry the red blocks to him from the piles along the street. He laid brick at the rate of 600 square yards a day. Another man had nearly a dozen men busy carrying the brick to him, and no doubt it was all local brick. Who would think of buying anything else in those days. In years to come instead of relaying the streets with brick a new pavement of Willite was laid on top of the brick.

No doubt in this hot weather the dust will fly again as it did back in the early 1900's. Well, we can always go back to the sprinkling system, when a man on a big water wagon which he filled at a hydrant

Skin, Scuba Diving Rules Offered by ARC

J. Brian Steeves, water safety chairman of the American Red Cross, Ulster County Chapter, points out that the increased popularity of skin and scuba diving carries with it potential hazards. To help make the sports more safe, the following rules should be observed:

Be a better than average swimmer, always wear or have surface flotation gear, treat spear guns as dangerous weapons, avoid the combination of surf and rocks, be in good physical condition, avoid overeating and drinking carbonated beverages before diving, know and respect your limitations, know and respect conditions of the area in which you are diving, know the location of your partner at all times, think, don't take chances; learn how to give artificial respiration, be alert to moving objects in the water, leave the water when cut or bleeding, stay away from piers or pilings and avoid rip tides, stay close to boat or surface, give dangerous fish a wide berth, do not dive into water while wearing a mask, stay up-current from accompanying boat, look up as you surface from a dive.

Use good equipment and check it carefully before each dive, always use good air-compressed air, never dive when you have a cold or sinus condition, ascend slowly and continue to exhale while rising, always have a flotation device with or near you, avoid deep dives, use a quick release for weights, remain calm—in good mental and physical condition, know and respect your limitations, avoid exhaustion, develop procedures for use in emergencies

AND PLAY WAS RESUMED—This was the scene on the 18th tee at Baltusrol Golf Club in Springfield as play resumed after a 31 minute delay because of deluge during late stages of first round play in the 67th U.S. Open Golf Championship. That's Ben Hogan teeing off. One spectator seems unconcerned as he sits in patio chair in puddle of water. Another stands barefooted, but under an umbrella. Hogan carded a six on the par 5 hole for a two-over-par 72. (AP Wirephoto).

Cards First Round 67

Fleckman, Open Leader; 'I Had a Lot of Luck'...

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, who had said an amateur couldn't win the U.S. Open, set out in pursuit of one today with two strokes to make up and very, very little to say about the non-professionals.

"I had a lot of luck," amateur Marty Fleckman shyly commented Thursday after he had started an elite field with a three-under-par 67 and a two-stroke lead in the United States Open Golf Championship.

Palmer, the golfing millionaire from Latrobe, Pa., and six more established stars of the game were tightly packed into a compact group at 63.

They included Gary Player, the little South African who won the title in 1965; flamboyant Chi Chi Rodriguez; Art Wall; Don January; defending champion Billy Casper and rookie pro Deane Beman.

One more stroke back after the rain-interrupted first round, and even with par at 70 for the 7,015-yard Baltusrol course, were former British open champion Kel Nagle of Australia, 1965 PGA champ Dave Marr, ageless Dutch Harrison, Gardner Dickinson and George Anheer.

71 for Nicklaus. Jack Nicklaus, who had stormed over the lush course in record 62 in his last practice round, had just posted his 71 when the torrential downpour—accompanied by thunder and lightning—sent the gallery of 15,787 and a handful of golfers scurrying for cover.

Among the latter was Ben Hogan, 55-year-old winner of four U.S. Open titles, who had just finished the 623 yard 17th—longest hole in Open history—and was one-over par.

After play was resumed 31 minutes later, he took a bogey six on the final hole and finished with a 72.

Fleckman, who learned his golfing lessons at the knee of the great Byron Nelson, was practically unknown among the field of 135 pros and 15 amateurs, and certainly wasn't in Palmer's mind two days ago.

Palmer, the 61 favorite going into the tourney, said the field was so good and the course in such fine shape that "any number of players could win it—maybe as many as 50."

"No, I don't think so," Arnie answered. "That's taking it too far. No, not an amateur."

Are the Minors Dying?

NEW YORK, (NEA)—Despite the rosy rhetoric emanating from the offices of the commissioner of baseball, the game is in deep trouble at the minor league level, and the downward spiral continues.

Minor league attendance figures indicate the game no longer interests many people who once supported local teams.

This raises the question whether baseball is headed for the same downfall as boxing.

Excluding the three Mexican professional leagues, there are only 13 minor leagues operating in the United States. Ten seasons ago there were 27, Mexican leagues excluded.

Oversaturation by television destroyed boxing and the smaller clubs which produced new talent. Now the same thing has happened in many minor league baseball towns.

In the towns that remain, attendance is extremely poor, according to 1966 figures. In Cocoa, Fla., for exam-

AMATEUR CELEBRITY—Amateur golfer Martin Fleckman of Port Arthur, Texas, signs autograph for woman after posting a three-under-par 67 in opening round of the U.S. Open Thursday. His score led a host of others by two strokes. (AP Wirephoto).

An amateur has not won the Open since 1933, when Johnny Goodman took it, and he's the only one to do it since the immortal Bobby Jones. And an amateur has not even led since 1954, when Billy Joe Patton took the first-round lead over this same course.

Did this sort of history bother Fleckman?

"Gee, no," he said, a surprised look crossing his darkly handsome face. "I hadn't even thought about it."

Fleckman, 23, is a native of Port Arthur, Tex., where he works in his father's lumber business. He's a recent graduate of the University of Houston where he won the NCAA championship, and started taking lessons from Nelson two years ago.

He was the first alternate to the U.S. Walker Cup squad and gained his spot on the team only when Beman turned pro a couple of months ago. Frank Beard, one of the pre-tourney favorites, took a 73, while Julius Boros, a two-time Open champ and winner of three tourneys this year, finished with a 75 after taking a triple bogey seven on No. 5.

Is Easy Winner. CANANDAIGUA, N.Y. (AP) — Magic Sword, trailing for most of the mile, pulled away to a 1½ length win over Elmerzer Jet in the $1,200 feature race Wednesday at Finger Lakes Race Track.

Marley finished third. Touring the distance in 1:42, the winner returned $6.40, $4.00, and $2.80.

A crowd of 3,464 wagered $235,390 at the pari-mutuel windows.

Baseball's highest minor leagues also had poor attendance figures in 1966. Rochester of the International League led the minors in attendance with 273,347. Hawaii led the Pacific Coast League with 191,367. Ten years ago, Buffalo led the International League with 386,071 and Vancouver led the PCL with 306,145.

Today, the major leagues subsidize their farm clubs. "We have no independent operators now in the traditional sense of the word," said Phil Piton, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

"There once were successful independent operators who owned and developed players without assistance from major league clubs. "That no longer is practical and it becomes more and more imperative for our clubs to maintain close association with the majors."

Phil Piton does not like the term "dying minors." Neither does anyone else in baseball.

Balcanoff, Watzka Gain Top Laurels

By ED PALLADINO

Freeman Sports Staff

Newburgh Free Academy, the DUSO League champions after winning a playoff from Kingston for the title, placed five of its performers on the All-DUSO team, as selected Thursday in Ellenville by members of the DUSO Sportswriters and Broadcasters Assn.

In addition to having four of his players on the All-Star team, coach George Balcanoff of the Goldbacks was cited as "Coach of the Year."

Kingston's Pete Watzka, a hard hitting, fancy fielding third baseman, was named the "Player of the Year."

In addition to Watzka, pitcher Charlie James represents KHS on the team. Pitcher Gene Stoutenberg, second baseman Greg Rios, shortstop Mike Derrenbacher and outfielder Bill Dugan are Honorable Mention selections.

Those from Newburgh on the All-Star squad are pitcher Ray Lease, catcher Tony DeCervo second baseman Nick Bucci and outfielders Wayne Youngs and Frank Connell.

First baseman John Markiewicz of Port Jervis and shortstop Rich Field of Middletown are the others awarded berths on the team.

Nips Derrenbacher

The closest contested position in the balloting was at shortstop where Field nipped Derrenbacher, the KHS sparkplug. Dugan received the fourth highest total of votes for an outfield berth.

Watzka, who batted a hefty .444 in seven DUSO contests, was a near unanimous choice as the top player. Lease, the NFA workhorse, was a distant second.

Balcanoff's laurels as top coach complete a banner season for the veteran mentor, who has made known his retirement from coaching. It was the 12th championship in 19 seasons for the talented coach and his fifth straight in playoff contests.

Billiard Club Triumphs, 8-1

Rich Carpino registered his third straight win and Community Billiard Center moved into a first place tie with Michael's Barber Shop with an 8-1 win over Paul's Shell in a saugerties Softball Yankee division contest.

The winners broke open a tight game with three runs in each of the fifth and sixth innings.

Carpino allowed only two hits and fanned three. Sam Tesoriero was the loser. Tony Konopka was the batting star with three singles and as many runs-batted-in.

Birdies Came Fast for Fleckman

Bagged Three in First 4 Holes

By CHARLES J. TIANO

Sports Editor

The birdies came fast and furious for Marty Fleckman, the 23-year-old Walker Cup player from the University of Houston, who opened with a 3-under-par 67 at plush Baltusrol Golf Club in Springfield, N. J., Thursday.

He birdied the 2nd, 3rd and 4th holes in succession, then added others at Nos. 11, 14 and 18.

The first round leader told the assembled press in a sweltering press tent that he was not as nervous as he had thought he would be. Fleckman credited his iron play, "particularly the short irons," for the excellent round.

Fleckman is a handsome, well proportioned 5-10, 175 pounder from Port Arthur, Texas where he is in the lumber business with his father. He was the NCAA champion in 1965; won the Eastern Amateur, in 1966, tied for 31st in the 1966 U. S. Amateur, was semi-finalist in the recent British Amateur, losing to Ron Cerrudo on the 19th hole.

Fleckman is married but has no children. "I've been playing pretty well for the last 10 days," he said, but declined to predict a victory.

"The odds against an amateur (135-1) run pretty high," he said, "but I feel I can play four good rounds."

Brilliant Sequence

After a par-4 on the 465-yard first hole, Fleckman spanked a 7 iron 15 feet from the pin on the 379-yard par-4 second and rolled it in for his first birdie.

At No. 3 (par 4, 438), sent a 3-iron screamer to within 6 feet of the cup and knocked it in. The No. 3 is a downhill, left dogleg with long, narrow green.

Fleckman came within 6 inches of holing out on par-3, 194-yard fourth hole, regarded by golf experts as one of the finest holes in the country. His 6-iron shot almost wrapped itself around the flag, dropping to within 6 inches of the cup.

He rolled in a 10-footer for a birdie at the 193-yard par 3 twelfth and collected his 6th bird of the day, when he reached the green in 2 with a 2-iron on the 542-yard eighteenth and two-putted. He bogeyed the 7th, 12th and 17th holes.

Fleckman took only 29 putts for the round.

Steltz Regains Pistol Honors

Frank Steltz was back in his No. 1 spot with a score of 281 in the weekly session of the Ulster County Pistol League.

Phillip Siggia was runnerup with 274, one point higher than Earl Buton's 273. Robert Cross and Albert Simard tied with 267's.

Other leaders:

Robert Johansen and William Morse, 265; Thomas Sommer 262, John TverDak 261, Harold Black 258, George Schwab 257, Norman Dewire 250.

The next match will be staged at the Wawarsing pistol range.

Louis Floyd Pilots Double

MONTICELLO—The pride of Bird's Nest, Va., Louis Floyd, gave his faithful followers something to cluck about last night as he scored triumphs in the first two races at Monticello Raceway and returned followers $140.80 for an 8-1 daily double combination.

Floyd won the opener with June First, a 14-year-old gelding which went from the far outside as grossly overlooked in the wagering. Pegged at 5-1 in the morning line, June First went off at 39-1 and the $80 payoff was the largest of the season for a single horse.

Then Floyd hit the payoff dirt with favored Casey Dares which went from the inside rail post and rewarded $3.20 for $2.

The featured fourth race, a claiming pace, was won by Silver Storm, a three-year-old, driven by Arthur Bier who came on in the stretch to nail Chief Jim.

John Gilmour took Chief Jim to the front early and held that position unchallenged until the head of the stretch when Bier moved Silver Storm to the fore. Chief Jim was second, just ahead of Nassawadox. The winner was clocked in 2:06.3 and returned $8.00, $3.40 and $2.60.

German-American Soccer Convention Here Saturday

Oehler's Site For Conclave And Two Games

Kingston Sport Club will be host to the 44th annual convention of the German-American Football Association Saturday and Sunday at Oehler's Mountain Lodge.

Following adjournment of the convention Sunday afternoon, a soccer doubleheader will be played starting at 2 p. m.

Port Ewen Juniors and Sagerties Juniors meet in the preliminary game, followed by the second straight meeting between the Sports Club and Hoboken Football Club at 3:30 p. m.

Hoboken FC is the oldest organized soccer team in the United States. The Kickers, of course, are the newest team in the German-American Association.

Delegates from the largest amateur soccer organization in the United States will converge on Oehler's for the two-day conclave.

The convention opens Saturday at 3 p. m., with the annual dinner at 8 p. m. and convention dance at 10 p. m. Sessions resume Sunday morning at which time the delegates will elect new officers and directors.

Editor to Speak
One of the speakers at the convention will be Wolfgang E. Besser, soccer editor of the German language newspaper, Staats-Zeitung. William Graham, secretary of the German-American Association, is also expected to attend.

The public has been invited to the dance.
Two trophies for the Kingston-Hoboken contest have been donated by the Schaefer Brewing Company.

Angels Acquire Repoz for Jack Sanford

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Athletics announced today outfielder Roger Repoz had been traded to the California Angels for pitcher Jack Sanford and a Triple A player from their organization.

Repoz, from Bellingham, Wash., was obtained by the A's last season in a trade with the New York Yankees.

Manager Al Dark of the Athletics said the 38-year-old Sanford "will be of tremendous help to our bullpen."

The club said the name of the Triple A player would be announced sometime in the next 72 hours. He will be assigned to the A's farm club at Vancouver.

Repoz is now on two weeks of military leave with the Army at Bellingham, Wash. His batting average for the season is .241. In 40 games he has two homers and eight runs batted in.

Member-Member Leaders at WCC Card 150 Score

Mrs. Thomas H. Dendy and Mrs. Joseph Fitzsimmons carded a net 150 to win the women's Member-Member tournament at Woodstock Country Club.

Runnersup were Mrs. Arnold Broggi and Mrs. Claude Needles with 152. Mrs. Floyd A. DeWitt and Mrs. Napier Dills took third place with 153.

In the 9-hole section, Mrs. Raymond Morse and Mrs. Clair Sheaffer led with 89. Mrs. Gifford Morey and Mrs. Raymond Morse posted 91 and Mrs. Anthony Pizzarelli and Mrs. L. J. Stothoff had 93.

Low putt honors went to Mrs. Alvin Moscovitz with 17 and Mrs. Harry Sanger with 19.

Adios Vic Wins Pace at Yonkers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Adios Vic, that high-stepping son of Adios, splashed through a mile and a half of mud at Yonkers Raceway Thursday night and scored a four-length victory in the $50,000 National Championship Pace.

The 5-year-old defeated Pocomoonshine and third-place Cardigan Bay, the 4-5 favorite and second on the all-time money-earning list.

The distance, clocked in 3:08 3-5, had driver Jim Davis worried before the contest but, after the race, Davis said the winner "really amazed me with the ease in which he won."

Adios Vic, the winner of last week's $50,000 Good Time Pace, returned $7,660, 4.60 and 2.60. Pocomoonshine, a 30-1 outsider, returned $13.00 and 3.00 while Cardigan Bay paid $2.20 for show.

In races featured at other tracks: Vernon Downs — Mangle ($2-80) defeated Newport Sharlie and third-place Rickson in the $2,000 pace, clocked in 2:04 1-5 for the mile.

Buffalo Raceway—Akela Kay ($4.80), a 5-year-old bay mare, won the $950 pace by a nose, defeating Anita Dillon in 2:05 4-5. Just Walter was third.

Saratoga Raceway—Imperial Star ($11) won the $800 pace after a stretch battle with Rose Oregon and third-place Maren-go. The time was 2:05 2-5 for the mile.

Sioux Wins, 5-2
A three-run surge in the fourth inning gave the Sioux a 5-2 win over Iroquois in a Metropolitan Knolthe League game.

Joe Fay with two doubles and a pair of singles, paced the winners. Ernie McGowan and Jake Becker also swatted doubles.

Doug Rockwell was the winner. Line score:

Vince Smedes' second inning grand slam home run highlighted a 14-hit attack as Royal Grill trounced Gordon's Bar, 20-2, in a City Softball League game Thursday at Upper Hasbrouck.

In winning their fourth straight after a pair of opening setbacks, the defending champions climaxed their big night with a 10-run surge in the fourth frame.

Starter John Woods was hit in the opening session when Tom Fiori, who with Smedes drove in four runs, slammed a roundtripper with a runner on base. It was easy after that.

In the explosive fourth frame, the winners picked up 10 safeties and took advantage of an error and a fielders choice.

Starter George Norton was the winner. George Mitchell finished up and was touched for two runs in the seventh. The losers used three chukkers and they were all hit hard.

Monday's game will feature Subway Grill and Royal Grill at Upper Hasbrouck.

Ron Hunt Wouldn't Step on Toes

NEW YORK—(NEA)—For a guy who built his image on head-first slides, head-on play and an aggressiveness that would have made him a natural with the old Gashehouse Gang, second baseman Ron Hunt has a strange outlook on life.

"If there's one thing I don't want to do," Hunt says, "it's to step on somebody's toes. I don't go in for that kind of thing."

Hunt, late of the New York Mets, found himself on the way to Los Angeles this spring in a swap for Tommy Davis and, quite naturally, a lot of Ron's friends in Fun City would like to know how Hunt feels about the switch.

They're not going to find out.

"Let's face it," reasons Hunt, "it would make interesting reading if I'd come into New York with the Dodgers and start putting the knock on people. That's the kind of publicity I don't need."

Hunt has established what he calls "some basic rules" to guide his conversations these days.

"There are several things I won't discuss," he says.

Like what?

"For one thing," Hunt dead-panned, "I won't compare the New York and Los Angeles organizations. For another, I won't compare managers Wes Westrum and Walter Alston or the personnel on either team. Also, I don't want to compare the fans in either city and I don't think it would be fair to compare the cities themselves. Outside of that, I'll talk about anything."

So what is the difference between being a Met and being a Dodger?

"Simple," says Hunt. "Last year the letters on my uniform spelled New York. This year they spell Los Angeles. It's just a case of wearing a different shirt. With the Mets I did everything I could to beat whoever we happened to be playing. With the Dodgers, I do the same thing."

Hunt, who hit .228 for the Mets last year and is the only Met in history ever to be elected to the All-Star team, has cause for ruffled feathers. Westrum, for one, has indicated that Ron is less than a pleasure to work with, but Hunt is saving his reply for the ballfield.

"I don't get any special thrill out of helping the Dodgers beat the Mets," says Hunt, "because I want to beat everybody. It's a serious business."

Clearly, if nice guys finish last, Hunt, who spent four years with the almost always last Mets, is ready for bigger and nastier things.

"I think we'll be in the thick of things by the end of the season and we could win it all," he says. And Hunt, of course, will do all he can to help the Dodgers keep the pennant in Los Angeles.

As long as it doesn't involve stepping on somebody's toes.

Wynn Slams Three, Houston Wins, 6-2

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jim Wynn put one and one and one together and solved the problem of the Houston Astrodome's huge dimensions. His solution surprised everyone, including Wynn.

"I'm going to quit moaning about how big this ballpark is after that exhibition," said veteran slugger Eddie Mathews after watching Wynn become the first player to hit three homers in one game in the Astrodome, with its 340-406-340 dimensions.

It also was the first time Wynn ever hit three homers in a major league game, and they helped Houston to a 6-2 victory over San Francisco Thursday night.

"I knew that eventually it (hitting three homers in one game) would come about," said the 5-foot-9, 168-pound outfielder, "but I didn't expect it to happen there."

Meanwhile, Manager Gene Mauch of Philadelphia had put two and two together and figured he would have to divide the first-game pitching chores in a two-night doubleheader against Pittsburgh. But Dick Hall also came up with a surprising solution.

Brewer and Don Sutton blanked Chicago on four hits as Los Angeles beat the Cubs 5-0.

Wynn's consecutive solo homers in the fifth, sixth and eighth innings gave him 14 for the season and six in his last seven games. The first tied the game 1-1, the second made it 3-2 and the third started a two-run inning that wrapped up the contest for Mike Cuellar, who scattered eight hits for an 8-2 record.

Wynn almost didn't try for the third.

"On the second strike, I was thinking of bunting," he said, "but the ball was inside and it wasn't a good pitch to try to lay down."

"I saw Joe Adcock hit four in Ebbetts Field, and I hit three there," Mathews said, "but I'd say this overshadowed either of those, coming in this big park."

Hall, whose longest previous stint this season was six innings, was not told he was going to start until minutes before game time "and I was a little nervous about it," he said. "It was a long time ago that I had started a game."

Asked if he would like to start regularly, he said "I'll have to see how the arm feels later."

Rich Allen drove in three runs with a single and a homer and Gene Oliver homered for the runs Hall needed.

The Pirates unloaded five hits, including two-run singles by Donn Clendenon and Blass, in their big inning. The Phils got to Blass only in the third when Gary Sutherland tripled and scored on an infield out and in the fifth when Clay Dalrymple homered.

Brewer, another pitcher normally found in the bullpen, allowed three hits in five innings before an elbow injury sidelined him and Sutton finished the shutout against Chicago.

Brewer also doubled in a run in the fourth inning off loser Ferguson Jenkins for his first hit in three years and his first extra base hit of his major league career. Wes Parker and Ron Hunt later homered.

Rochester Lead Now 5 1/2 Games

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There was a bit of bracing news for Toledo's Mud Hens today as they moved into Rochester for the customarily depressing task of meeting the International League-leading Red Wings in a four-game series.

The cheering news was that the IL's other Ohio team, Columbus, beat the Red Wings Thursday night 2-1. Why was this so cheery? Because Rochester had beaten the Jets the last seven times they met.

And what bearing does it all have on Toledo's excursion to Red Wing stadium? Simply that the Mud Hens haven't been very lethal against Rochester, either. The Wings have beaten them eight games in a row.

Columbus' victory Thursday night ended Rochester's latest winning streak at eight games and was achieved behind lefty Billy Short, who not so long ago was a Rochester ace.

Toronto cut Rochester's first-place lead to 5 1/2 games by trouncing Richmond 10-5 and Toledo won its fourth in a row by downing Syracuse 3-2 in other games. Jacksonville and Buffalo were not scheduled.

Sports Briefs

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP)—Adios Vic, who ended Romeo Hanover's 21-race winning streak in the Good Time Pace last week, is favored to win the $50,000 National Championship Pace at 1 1/4 miles at Yonkers Raceway tonight.

OCEANPORT, N.J. (AP)—Jorge Velasquez rode five winners at Monmouth Park race track Wednesday.

MOSPORT, Ont. (AP)—Gary Congdon of Gardena, Calif., escaped injury Wednesday when his Harrison Chev Special went off the track in a practice spin for Saturday's 200-mile auto race.

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Hussain Ertomen of Turkey, trainer of the Mexican National amateur wrestling team, suffered a heart attack Wednesday. His condition was termed serious.

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP)—Ron Clark, rookie third baseman of the Minnesota Twins, had fluid drained from his right elbow Wednesday at the Mayo Clinic and doctors said he should be able to play in about two weeks.

The sore elbow had impaired Clark's throwing, and Monday the Twins placed him on the disabled list for three weeks.

Trade Raymond For Blasingame

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Relief pitcher Claude Raymond can change to his traveling uniform tonight without leaving town.

Raymond was traded by the Houston Astros to the Atlanta Braves for pitcher Wade Blasingame just before Thursday night's trading deadline.

It might not take Raymond long to get a chance to pitch against his former teammates as the Braves open a three-game series in Houston tonight.

There were three other deals made before the deadline.

In one Jim King jumped from the last-place Washington Senators to the Chicago White Sox, the American League leaders.

The White Sox exchanged outfielder Ed Stroud for King, who was the last of the original expansion Senators.

The California Angels were involved in the other two transactions. They obtained outfielder Woody Held from Baltimore for southpaw pitcher Marcelino Lopez, and outfielder Roger Repoz from Kansas City for pitcher Jack Sanford and an unnamed Triple A player.

Raymond, a 30-year-old native of St. Jean, Que., Canada, has failed to win this season and has four defeats. He posted a 7-5 record with the Astros in 1966.

The 23-year-old Blasingame is 1-2 this year, and was 3-7 with a 5.29 earned run average last season.

Angry Frank Robinson Seeks to Stir Orioles

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Big Frank Robinson is seeking to stir up a hornet's nest, but the slumping Baltimore Orioles are still winging their way in the direction of the American League's second division.

The pesky Kansas City A's buzzed around the bases like bees in the eighth inning Thursday night, scoring five times to overcome a 5-0 deficit and then beat the Orioles 6-5 in the 11th on Reggie Jackson's single.

The setback dropped the American League champs two places to fifth; they are only one game ahead of Kansas City, Cleveland and the New York Yankees, who are deadlocked for the No. 6 spot.

In other AL games, Boston edged the leading Chicago White Sox 2-1 in 11 innings, the Yanks blanked Washington 2-0 and Minnesota defeated Detroit, 6-4. California and Cleveland were not scheduled.

Robinson, the Orioles' star outfielder and last year's triple crown winner, said before the game with the A's, "This is no damned good a baseball club to be down where we are. If I stir up a hornet's nest maybe it's a good thing. Maybe they'll get stirred up enough that we'll get up there where we belong."

Poor Word Choice

Earlier in the day the slugger had been quoted as saying there was some jealousy on the team. However, Manager Hank Bauer explained, "I think Frank used a poor choice of words. I think the right word is envious. Last year we always had two men in the line-up who were hitting the ball real good. This year we haven't."

For a while, the Orioles were hitting the ball real good Thursday night. They jumped on the A's Jim Nash for five runs in six innings, one on Boog Powell's sixth homer, Dave Johnson, Andy Etchebarren and Brooks Robinson each doubled in runs, and Etchebarren's sacrifice fly brought in another.

Then Kansas City went to work on Baltimore starter Tom Phoebus in the eighth, tying the score on five hits and an error.

John Donaldson opened the 11th with a triple and after a hit batsman and an intentional walk, Jackson's single scored Donaldson.

Tony Conigliaro, Mickey Mantle and Harmon Killebrew were the circuit's other batting stars. Conigliaro's two-run homer with two out in the 11th enabled

Salvidar Wins, Retains Title

By BOB WATTS

CARDIFF, Wales (AP)—Vicente Saldivar of Mexico began a European holiday today, his world featherweight boxing title still intact after a blazing defense Thursday night.

Saldivar, 24, blasted Britain's Howard Winstone into a 15-round points defeat before a crowd of 30,000 Welshmen in Cardiff's open-air Ninian Park Stadium.

English referee Wally Thom scored it 73 1/2 points for Saldivar and 73 1/4 points to Winstone—a two-round margin on the British Scoring system.

But Saldivar, a pocket version of Rocky Marciano, punished the skilful 28-year-old Welshman so effectively in the closing rounds that the narrow points margin did not reflect the Mexican's final superiority.

The fight was almost an exact replica of Saldivar's title victory over Winstone in London in September 1965.

Saldivar, who weighed 125 1/2, dropped Winstone with a flurry of blows for a count of eight in the 14th round, but couldn't knock out the courageous Welshman.

Winstone weighed 125 pounds. "I'm looking forward now to a nice holiday in Europe," Saldivar said.

The little Mexican said he is going to France on Monday and will carry out a short tour on the Continent before returning to a hero's welcome in Mexico.

Saldivar, who has now won 30 of his 31 pro fights, said he had no idea whom he will fight next.

Numata Beats Flash Elorde

TOKYO (AP)—Yoshiaki Numata, Japan's new world junior lightweight boxing champion had high hopes of becoming a professional baseball player. But a friend changed his whole life by secretly entering Numata in an amateur boxing competition six years ago.

Today, the 22-year-old boxer from Hokkaido, Japan's northernmost main island, is king of the 130-pound division in his decision victory over 32-year-old Flash Elorde of the Philippines Thursday night.

A catcher of promise in baseball and a basketball player, Numata quit high school because of financial difficulties. He heard of a boxing tournament sponsored by a promoter and television station in Sapporo, Hokkaido's big city, and wanted to enter.

His father, a poor bicycle repairman, refused to let him compete. A friend, however, entered his name and Numata, followed up. He passed the test with flying colors.

Numata climaxed his meteoric career Thursday by winning a majority decision over Elorde before a capacity crowd of 10,000 in Kuramae Stadium. It was his 25th consecutive victory.

Numata's record now is 32-4, including nine knockouts. He weighed 129 1/2 to 130 for Elorde.

Hall Gets Start

With scheduled starter Jim Bunning ill with bronchitis, Mauch decided to start Hall, a 36-year-old relief specialist, and then finish with Dick Farrell, but Hall went the distance to beat the Pirates 4-1 in his first start in four years.

Dick Ellsworth failed to last one inning in the nightcap as Steve Blass of Pittsburgh capped a five-run first with a two-run single and then stopped the Phils 5-2 on seven hits.

In the only other National League game scheduled, Jim

Let's Boost Kingston Area

Members of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce desirous of expressing their faith in the Kingston area and in its future have submitted a number of timely articles, the second of which follows:

WATER SUPPLY

The greatest single asset the City of Kingston enjoys is its incomparable water and the growth of the City over the past seven decades can be attributed in large part to its water system. How did the system, as it exists today, originate; how does it operate and what future requirements are necessary for it to cope with the expanding economy of the Kingston of the future. These questions may be briefly answered as follows:

In March of 1896, following an enabling act passed by New York Legislature, "to provide for supplying the City of Kingston with pure and wholesome water," the first Board of Water Commissioners was appointed and the Water Department of the City of Kingston was formed. One of the first acts of the board was to purchase the then existing Kingston Water Company, a private corporation which had been formed in 1884. This company had constructed a small reservoir at Zena, N. Y., and had installed a supply main from it and some distributary mains in the city. One of the first major steps taken by the municipal Water Board was the construction of a filtration plant in 1898 at Zena, which plant with several later additions and updating over the years is in operation today and a vital part of the water supply system as it now exists.

As the needs for an expanded water system became evident because of the city's growth and its economic development, the water system was enlarged by the purchase of water-shed lands; acquisition, conversion, and subsequent enlargement of the Cooper Lake Reservoir to its present capacity; the installation of additional supply conduits from the reservoir to the city; and the installation of supply and distributing mains in the city's streets; until the entire water system emerged as it exists in 1967. One very important factor in the growth of the Kingston Water System has been its financial stability over the years of its municipal existence. Not only the cost of the acquisition of the physical plant of the old Kingston Water Company but also all normal operating costs and the expenses of the extensive improvements made over the past seventy years have been met solely from the revenues derived from the sale of water.

The present Water System of the City of Kingston consists generally of (1) supply source (2) transmission mains (3) filtration plant (4) the distribution system. Briefly, the supply source consists of a water shed area of about 8.6 square miles located in the Mink Hollow or Upper Beaverkill Valley, in the Catskill Mountains. The Cooper Lake Storage reservoir at Lake Hill to which this water shed contributes has a full capacity of about 1200 million gallons. From this reservoir approximately 15 miles of cast iron pipe conduits convey the 4,000,000 gallons of water required for the city's daily needs. Located at Zena, on the main conduits about 10 miles below the Cooper Lake Reservoir is the Filtration Plant where the raw water is processed for city consumption. This process consists, basically, of sand filtration, chemical treatment to insure proper quality, and, most important, chlorination of all filtered water for the consumer's protection. From the Filtration Plant the water is conveyed to the distribution system of the city. Here, underground in the city's streets are located over 90 miles of cast iron mains from which the individual consumer, commercial facilities and industries are supplied. The mains of the distribution system are controlled by 1,000 gate valves and, for the important factor of fire protection, over 800 hydrants are installed throughout the city and are maintained for immediate use in the event of fires. They are also used, as required, to supply the water used in street cleaning, flushing of sewers and other municipal uses.

In the course of the development of the Kingston Water System to its present state major improvements have included: The construction of the 12 million gallon capacity Equalizing Reservoir at Sawkill; the erection of three city water storage facilities having a total stored capacity of 2.1 million gallons to insure adequate pressure and fire protection in certain high city areas; city wide metering to eliminate waste and to equitably distribute water costs to every consumer; the installation of many miles of new and larger mains in strategic areas of the city to improve pressures and correct deficient flows for fire protection.

Water Commissioners

The Board of Water Commissioners is solely responsible for the proper planning and operation of the water department. The board members are appointed by the Mayor for a term of five years with one new appointment being made each year in order to insure continuity of the board's membership. The members serve without pay and must be resident taxpayers of the city. The board, by provisions of the city charter, is charged with the duty to plan, construct, and maintain the entire water system in order to supply the City of Kingston with a pure and wholesome water; to fix, make, determine and collect all water rates necessary to properly operate the department in an efficient and economic manner; to propose and enforce all necessary rules and regulations concerning the property, appliances and the management of the water supply system.

The daily operation of the water system is under the direction of the superintendent who, with a staff of 35 employees, is responsible to the board for the routine maintenance and the quality and continuity of the water supply to the consumer. This daily maintenance operation includes the patrol and protection of the water sheds, reservoirs and pipe lines; the operation of the Filtration Plant; daily bacteriological examinations of the water both raw and filtered at the filtration plant, and in the city; the reading of almost 8,000 meters every three months; the preparation of bills and the collection of the 8,000 accounts quarterly; investigation, location and repair of all leaks in the mains; and all other required work to insure the proper operational maintenance of the water system.

From time to time over the past 50 years the Board has had evaluations made of the water system by its consulting engineers, who have recommended major capital improvements in order to keep the water system at peak efficiency. This planning is vital in a changing community environment. Many of the recommendations made over 30 years ago are now realized in the present system. Present planning for future years includes, the enlargement of the storage facilities at Cooper Lake Reservoir; the replacement of the existing 67 year old Filter Plant with a modern structure; the replacement of obsolete hydrants, gate valves and small and inadequate distribution mains. All of these improvements must be accomplished in the future years in order to make certain that the quality of the water and service to its consumers are maintained at peak efficiency. It can be said that the prosperity and growth of the City of Kingston, both residentially and industrially has been and will be almost wholly dependent on the ability of its water system to serve its citizens adequately with all the pure and wholesome water it may require.

Feels County Legislature Must Update

The new Ulster County Legislature will have the "chance of a lifetime" to form a modern government structure which can deal effectively and economically with contemporary problems, according to Richard Nace, 2nd District Republican candidate for the new governing body.

The Town of Ulster candidate said all county governments must adopt new methods if they are to keep county government in the hands of county voters, Nace added.

"Federal government takes State matters out of State hands because it sees State governments as inefficient. States take powers from the hands of counties for the same reason. If this trend is to be stopped and reversed, counties have to look ahead, and districts have to look ahead—to improve present services and provide for new needs without a proportionate increase in costs," he said.

He said he would like to see the Legislature consult with business managers and seek advice from organizational specialists when it convenes next year.

"Each county, each district, must accept the responsibilities they face, or they will lose more and more control to more and more people in more and more government offices further and further away," Nace emphasized.

The GOP candidate serves as tax collector for Ulster. He is running as one of a five-man "legislative team" with Frank Miller, Hurley; Lester Elmen-dorf, Ulster; Robert Kelder Sr., Marlinton; and Douglas Dye, Kingston, in the 2nd District primary next Tuesday, June 20.

An Ulster Republican Committeeman, Nace served as a bomber pilot with the Eighth Air Force in the European theatre during World War II, and is now a battalion staff officer with the National Guard here. He is a past president of the Chambers School P.T.A., a member of the official board and finance committee of Clinton Avenue Methodist Church, and trustee of the Town of Ulster library.

Nace is employed by the City of New York as a civil engineering draftsman in the city's real estate division office at Shokan.

Man Arrested On Drug Charge

A New York City man was arrested Wednesday by Investigator Thomas Mayone of the district attorney's office, Kingston City Detective W.F. Hall and Albany agents of the New York State Narcotics Bureau on a warrant out of New York City charging him with possession and sale of a narcotic drug. He was turned over to the New York Narcotics Bureau.

Dick Metal, 28, of 28 London Terrace Towers, New York City, was wanted in New York for sale and possession. He was picked up on Broadway by the local officers.

As a result of the arrest Wednesday on the New York City warrant, charges may also be lodged against him locally. Investigator Mayone reported that when picked up, material which is believed to be of narcotic origin was found in his possession. The investigation is being continued, Mayone said.

Pornographic Art Received Locally

Complaints of receipt of pornographic material through the mail have begun to be received locally. On Tuesday a complaint was received from a Cottekill resident that he had received such material through the mail. It was postmarked High Falls.

After a preliminary investigation by Ulster County Harold T. Bowers of the Sheriff's Department, the complaint was turned over to the postal authorities. Sending of such material is a Federal offense. The complaint was lodged by George Maitland of Cottekill, who had received nude pictures by mail on Tuesday. The material originates in a Mid-Western city and contains offers to sell additional material.

Three Writers

The essays later published in one volume under the title of "The Federalist" were written by Alexander Hamilton, John Jay and James Madison, under the common pen name of "Publius." The essays were written to gain support for the ratification of the Constitution.

Golf, Not Horse Racing Is the Sport of Kings

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The multimillion-dollar deal under which Arnold Palmer Enterprises became a part of the National Broadcasting Co. shows that, financially speaking, golf rather than horse racing is the sport of kings.

Palmer has made more money on the golf course than any man before him, about $800,000. But his off-the-course earnings from distributing, licensing and endorsing products is very likely much greater.

Earns Millions
Last year Palmer's enterprises grossed $15 million from clothing, books, driving ranges, schools, sportswear, personal appearances and dozens of other products and activities. His alpacas and wool cardigan, on which he receives royalties, is said to be the most successful sweater in the nation.

This is an extreme case, but many other professionals — driving range instructors to top tournament players — are cashing in on the enormous popularity of this billion-dollar-a-year sport.

The big tournament players are, in fact, the superheros of the sport business, more adored, envied and emulated by adults than the stars of any other sport. These emulators generally are a bit more affluent than, say, baseball fans. And so the heroes very often receive some of this cash in tribute from the heavy hitters. A spokesman for International Management Inc., of Cleveland, Ohio, which handles the affairs of the royalty — Palmer, Gary Player and Jack Nicklaus — explains that the superhero status results not only from the physical accomplishments. It's the manner too. "Golfers are well educated. They think well. They get along with people very well."

There are many other factors, however, that set golf apart from more plebeian pursuits.

Hits All Levels
"Golf is a sport acceptable at all levels of society," said the International Management man. "It is gentlemanly. Even a company president can identify with golf stars. And it is an individual's game and a participant sport as well."

Since golf is a participant sport it has a considerable market among the eight million Americans who play golf with some degree of regularity and need a wide assortment of equipment and paraphernalia.

Palmer's good fortune is due in part to the efforts of Mark McCormack, head of International Management. McCormack, a lawyer, has helped define and refine golf's business possibilities.

McCormack's clients generally are set up in business. Thus, Arnold Palmer heads Arnold Palmer Enterprises, Inc. and the Arnold Palmer Golf Co. He is the leading stockholder in each. McCormack is second largest.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced early Friday in active trading.

If the rise continued to the close it would be the eighth advance in nine sessions.

Some of the leading steels joined with selected aerospace issues, rails and office equipments to make a good showing.

Gains of about a point were made by IBM, Republic Steel, Jones & Laughlin, General Dynamics, United Aircraft, Eastern Air Lines, Texaco and National Steel.

Some recent speculative favorites sagged on profit taking. Among them, Standard Oilman dropped about 1 1/2, Occidental Petroleum 1 and Pittston Co. a fraction.

Pan American World Airways was active and up a fraction. Brokers said that on Thursday the market absorbed the usual preweekend evening operations without difficulty.

Opening blocks included: Standard Oil New Jersey, up 1/4 at 62 1/2 on 9,100 shares; U.S. Steel, up 1/4 at 46 1/2 on 5,000; Chrysler, up 1/4 at 44 1/2 on 5,500; and Ford, up 1/4 at 51 1/2 on 3,500. The stock market background was brighter, analysts said.

They took note of approval of a rise in the debt limit by the House Ways & Means Committee; a sharper rise in personal income last month despite another decrease in factory payrolls; the climb in free reserves of Federal Reserve banks to the highest level in more than four years; and the postponement of a railroad strike until September, at least.

WOODSTOCK SPECIAL — Supervisor William R. West and Local League of Women Voters members (L) Mmes. Terry Moss, Sylvia Horsey and Jean Falkner, discuss plans for branch Permanent Resident Registration here. To make registration more convenient for town residents, West made special arrangements for two extra days of voter registration locally. Town Hall will be open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Tuesday and Wednesday, June 27 and 28, so voters can register early and avoid a possible rush in individual voting districts next fall. West and the LVW point out that even if voters have been permanently registered here before, they must register again this year under PPR and fill out forms to make registration uniform throughout the State. Remember, they caution, that no one can vote in November unless he registers this year and registers in person.

Name Local Man Head of State Engineer Group

At the annual Conference of Mayors and other municipal officials held at Syracuse June 11 to June 15 Thomas J. Wickman, city engineer of Kingston, was elected president of the New York State Association of Municipal Engineers.

George W. Allen, city engineer of Oswego was elected vice-president and Eric A. Andrews, commissioner of public works, White Plains was elected secretary-treasurer.

The Association, which is celebrating its 40th anniversary this year has a membership of engineers representing most of New York State's 62 cities and many of its incorporated villages.

Wickman has been city engineer for the past four and a half years and is also president of the Ulster Chapter of the New York State Society of Professional Engineers and a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers and the Kingston Lions Club.

Before appointment as city engineer in 1963, Wickman was district engineer in charge of the privately owned water supply system of Glen Cove, L. I. Born in Woodside, L. I., he is a graduate of Brooklyn Technical High School and received a Bachelor of Civil Engineering degree from Manhattan College in 1951.

Wickman did graduate work in structural engineering at the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn and received professional registration in the State of New York in 1956.

Residing in Kingston with his wife, the former Anne Tully of Manhasset, L. I., Wickman has four daughters, Caroline, Teresa, Mary Beth and Lisa.

Mrs. Peter Mazzuchelli of Hamilton Court and Robert Graves who have been patients at the Kingston Hospital are now at their respective homes.

Tour, Meeting Link Meeting By Hemphill

Executive Director Eric Hemphill of the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency said today that there was "no connection" between the Federal inspection tour of the Kingston project areas Monday and Tuesday and the local agency's failure to receive an invitation to the meeting of the Department of Housing and Urban Development in New York City this morning.

Hemphill added that a report on the results of the inspection tour are not expected until later this weekend.

Meanwhile, Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan, Alderman John Francis R. Koenig and members of the Common Council, Committee on Urban Renewal were in New York today, ironing out local problems with the HUD officials.

A major issue to be discussed at this morning's meeting was the responsibility of the Kingston Urban Agency to withhold or disclose purchasing prices of properties in the development areas to the mass media.

Earlier, James Sweeney, HUD's Assistant Regional Director, advised the local Agency to open these prices to public scrutiny. Hemphill said today, however, that so far he has received no "explicit directives" and will continue the policy of his office on the matter until he has been given "direct orders" from the Federal official.

Reportedly attending the New York meeting today were committee members James F. Howard, chairman, Joseph Epstein, Emilio A. Primo Jr., Peter Mancuso, John Naccarato, George Margolis and John Madhoun. With the group was Alderman T. Robert Gallo (R-Ninth Ward), who originated the proposal to disclose agency property prices.

Hemphill, whose salary has been suspended pending further Federal investigation, was elected earlier this week to a two-year term as a member-at-large of the New York State Association of Urban Renewal Officials.

He was named at the annual spring conference held at Lake Placid this week, according to Ray B. Martin, executive director of the Glens Falls Urban Renewal Agency, elected president of the organization for 1968-69.

Hemphill has been an active member of NYSAURO and has served on several committees since coming to Kingston three years ago. He had served on the Redevelopment Authority for the City of Philadelphia for eight years prior to his local appointment.

2 Jova Brick Plants Close, Talks Snarled

A deadlock in negotiations for a new contract today resulted in the shutdown of East Kingston and Roseton plants of the Jova Brick Works, it was learned today.

Henry Abreau, president of the company reached at the Orange County plant headquarters, confirmed reports of the shutdown. He said the company employs between 150 and 165 workers.

The old contract expired at midnight, Abreau said. A meeting with union officials, management and a mediator is slated in Kingston Monday. Abreau declined to disclose any details of the dispute at this time.

Anthony Alecca and Joseph Amato of the Teamsters Union reportedly were in Roseton today and could not be contacted for comment.

Negotiations have been underway for several weeks.

Dog Trainer Fired, Helped Track Kidnaper

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — The Erie police force has fired dog trainer Tom McGinn—the man whose German Shepherds tracked down Shade Gap kidnaper William Hollenbaugh.

Erie Mayor Louis Tullio said McGinn was fired Thursday for striking a police captain after the officer ordered McGinn out of his office.

McGinn, formerly of El Dorado, Ark., and now of Spencerport, N.Y., had been hired to develop Erie's new K-9 Corps under a one-year contract.

One of his tracking dogs was killed and one wounded in May, 1966, as lawmen closed in on Hollenbaugh and kidnaper victim Peggy Ann Bradnick.

To Face Charges Of Robbing Banks

ASBURY PARK, N.J. (AP)—Richard Francis Bartlett, 21, formerly of Syracuse, N.Y., will face charges of robbing banks in New York State and Pennsylvania, the FBI says.

Bartlett was arrested here Thursday by Asbury Park police.

Bartlett escaped from the Correctional Councils Facility, Wilmington, Del., last Dec. 5, and, the FBI said, he since has been involved in two armed robberies.

On April 10, according to agents, Bartlett allegedly held up the First National Bank of Mexico, N.Y., and took $5,379. On May 11, he allegedly robbed the National Bank of Chester County and Trust Co., Avondale, Pa., of $2,040.

Bartlett had been sent to the correctional institute last July 5 on conviction of interstate transportation of stolen autos.

He is being held in the Monmouth County Jail on $50,000 bail set by a U.S. commissioner Thursday. The FBI said he would be transferred to Albany, N.Y., to face bank robbery charges.

Survey of Some Dutchess Towns

Economic Future Appears Bleak

By CHARLES BERMFOHL

When economist Dr. James Kenney presented a view of the future of several northern Dutchess town and villages recently, the outlook was anything but rosy.

What he said was this: the economic welfare of the communities will depend upon what goes on outside the area; business firms with any large employment potential will continue to remain aloof; area citizens will keep shopping in the larger complexes in Kingston and Poughkeepsie; agriculture, the old mainstay, on the decline since the 50's, will not be revitalized on any large scale.

Typical of the towns in the area is Red Hook, which includes the incorporated villages of Red Hook and Tivoli.

The Red Hook Outlook

According to Kenney, Red Hook agriculture will continue to slide into decline, and even though a few fruit farms will continue to operate effectively, there will be no introduction of any new types of farms.

As for retail trade, people will continue to do the bulk of their shopping outside of the area.

The establishing of wholesale trade is not feasible and in order to attract manufacturing firms, a costly town sewerage system would have to be installed and the technical skills that are in abundance are not needed.

The Village of Red Hook is a comparatively prosperous hamlet of about 1,800 people. Tivoli, by contrast, has suffered economically for years. A village of approximately 800 people, she was once a booming railroad town with a ferry that carried passengers to and from Saugerties boasting, "The shortest crossing in the Hudson." But the freight trains clack past now and the ferry has long since vanished.

Area Industry

There are only a few industries in the township, amongst them a pie packaging firm, a pre-fabricated steel plant, a fine instrument business, a dairy company, a soap manufacturing factory, and Red Hook Cold Storage.

The combined employee population of the companies can be

Population Doubled
Regardless of what the statistics have suggested, the town's population from 1955 to the present has doubled.

To consider the factors behind this increase one would have to realize that there is a modern strategy to move just far away from congested population centers so as to enjoy more pleasant surroundings while being able to benefit from the services and the jobs that exist in those centers. Red Hook keeps its image as a country hamlet and it's

The Weather

HOT AND HUMID

Lower Hudson Valley:
Mohawk Valley:
Western Catskills:
Upper Hudson Valley:

Partly cloudy, quite warm and humid today through Saturday. A few scattered afternoon or evening thundershowers both days. Highs both days in the 80s to low 90s. Lows tonight in the mid 60s to low 70s. South to southwest winds, 10 to 20, today and Saturday, diminishing, 15 or less, tonight. Strong gusty winds are likely in some thundershowers. Outlook: Quite warm and humid with scattered, mainly afternoon and evening thundershowers. Thundershowers may become a little more numerous during the weekend. Showers and thundershowers and somewhat cooler Sunday.

Northeastern New York:

Partly cloudy to cloudy, warm and humid today and tonight with scattered showers and thundershowers. Showers most active in the north portion. Highs today in the upper 70s and 80s. Low tonight in 60s. Mostly cloudy Saturday with showers and thundershowers. A little cooler. Highs in the 70s to low 80s. Southwesterly winds, 10 to 25, today and, 8 to 18, tonight becoming westerly, 10 to 25, Saturday. Strong gusty winds likely in some thundershowers. Outlook: Quite warm and humid with scattered, mainly afternoon and evening thundershowers.

The calibre of the people who have moved into those homes and have increased the town's numbers must be relatively high, educationally speaking, because Red Hook, along with Wappinger, La Grange, Rhinebeck, and Pawling townships, has the highest educational ratings in the county with 12-16 per cent of the total population 25 years old and over having completed four or more years of college.

This is in stark contrast to the Town of Amenia with an average 2.4 school years completed for the total population of 25 and over.

The School System
One of the more attractive features of the town is the existence of a well-ordered school system.

Clerk Rabbett said that of the 700 high school students in the overall student population of 1,850, "75 per cent of the graduates go on to two or four year colleges."

Rabbett added that "the dropout rate is small compared to other schools in the area," and that "we are doing everything that can be done at a minimum of pupil cost."

The junior and senior high school was finished in 1965, was made for 800 students but is expandable to 900. The combined schools will operate under a 1967 budget of $1,400,000.

The village clerk also mentioned that there was quite a busy airport in the town called Sky Park Inc., with much of its traffic coming from small business firms.

Town Problems

As with Rhinebeck, and a number of other towns cited in the Kenney report, sewage is fast becoming a major problem in Red Hook and the need for adequate sewerage facilities should soon be acute.

Water is also another problem, on reason being that there is too much iron and manganese found in it.

"There are quite a few welfare cases in town," said Clerk Rabbett, but he adds, "most of the cases are in Tivoli."

Rabbett had to prod his memory into recalling when the last Democrat won an election in the town, but he points out that years ago a Democratic supervisor, by the name of Alvah Stickle, was reelected for 26 terms, for a total of 52 years.

This meant that Republicans with supervisory ambitions were born, went to school, got married, had children, and probably died of frustration with Supervisor Stickle continuing to hold office.

As for recreation, town people may go bowling, hunting, fishing, or boating but Clerk Rabbett says that there is the astounding number of 20 taverns in the township, although, he adds, weekend cottage residents probably keep them operating more so than regular town people.

Saturday Warm, Sunday Cooler

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Extended forecasts for Upstate New York, as reported by the U.S. Weather Bureau, from Saturday through Wednesday:

The weather will be warm and humid Saturday. Cooler Sunday but little temperature change is expected thereafter.

Temperatures are expected to average a little below normal over northeastern and western New York and near normal or a little above in the southeastern area. Daily highs will be in the 70s over northeastern and western New York and in the low to mid 80s in the southeastern counties. Nighttime lows will be mostly in the 50s.

Rainfall is expected to be generally more than one half inch in scattered showers and thundershowers over the weekend and early next week.

Fire Destroys Swan Lake Hotel

SWAN LAKE, N.Y. (AP) — Woda's Hotel near here burned to the ground Thursday night in the third resort hotel fire in the area this spring.

No guests were in the hotel at the time and no one was injured, but the hotel was a total loss and damage was estimated at from $150,000 to $175,000.

The Fieldston and Kanco Hotels were destroyed by fire earlier this spring.

Listening Is Kiwanis Topic

How well do you listen was the subject of a talk presented before Kingston Kiwanis Club Thursday by Bernard F. Redmond, a member of the staff of the local IBM plant.

There are three classifications of listeners, said the speaker. Those who listen poorly, those who do not listen at all, and those who are good listeners, were the three categories emphasized in a business world where seven out of every 10 hours is spent in some type of communication. Of these 10 hours, Redmond said that 45 per cent of the time was spent in listening.

Directly after hearing a 10-minute speech, it was found that 50 per cent of the speech was retained by the listeners, but a test at a later time revealed only 25 per cent retention, he added.

Another example quoted by Redmond pertained to a large corporation where management was convinced that its employees "loved management." A check of the employees showed such was not the case, mainly because they had not properly listened to management directives. Management that is a good listener to its employees usually gains more respect, Redmond indicated.

The speaker listed some of the worse listening habits. The listener who decides the subject is uninteresting was pictured as one who tunes out the speaker and tunes in to other people and subjects. Another bad habit was cited as the listener who criticizes the speaker's delivery and dress, concentrating upon these facets rather than the subject matter.

Then there is the over-stimulated listener who is apt to ask embarrassing questions because he has gone on mental excursions in search of nasty questions rather than listen to the speaker's words, he said. The one who listens for facts only and misses the remainder of the speech was pointed to as another bad-habit listener.

Redmond spoke of the listener who makes an outline of everything a speaker says. He said few speakers use an outline and therefore the listener is too busy making his own outline to obtain the gist of the spoken word. The person who fakes attention to the speaker while his mind is off on various mental tangents was another case of a bad habit.
